Several Go to Hospital for Treatment After Cars Crash on Route 23; None Serious

Four persons suffered minor injuries Monday in auto accidents on holiday-crowded highways in Pickaway county.

Three Columbus persons were hurt when cars in which they were riding sideswiped on Route 23 about nine miles north of Circleville, Monday night.

OHIO'S PATROL HUNTS OUTLAWS

Brady Gangsters Seen Headed Into State, Indiana Reports

LIMA, June 1—(UP)—Heavily armed highway patrolmen headed west from Lima today in response to radio reports from Fort Wayne, Ind., police that two men suspected of being members of the Alfred Brady holdup gang were headed toward Van Wert and Lima.

State highway patrol headquarters ordered a blockade established on all main roads in northwestern Ohio. The report from Indiana stated the two men had been seen driving east on route 30 in an automobile bearing license plates used by the Brady gangsters.

The Brady gang has been accused of numerous bank and store holdups in Indiana and western Ohio during the last year. One member of the gang was wounded after a jewelry store holdup.

NOTE DECLARES NAZI SPLIT WITH VATICAN IS NEAR

BERLIN, June 1—(UP)—A possible rupture of normal diplomatic relations between Germany and the Vatican was threatened in a note to the Holy See, published here today.

The note was in response to the Vatican's reaction to Germany's protest against the recent speech of Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago belittling Fuehrer Adolf Hitler.

The note expressed "keen surprise and shock to think that the Vatican left the German representation without answer on the pretext that the cardinal merely reciprocated attacks in a like manner—a theory which is unsubstantiated, unjustified and incorrect."

The note declared the Vatican thereby "backed up unequalled public attacks by one of its highest dignitaries on the head of the German state."

It concluded by saying that as long as no redress is given, "this unexpected attitude of the Holy See may make impossible the continuation of normal relations between Germany and the Vatican. The Holy See alone is responsible for this development."

LEWIS TO BACK AUTO WORKERS IN FORD DRIVE

C. I. O. Chief Pledges All Resources To Combat Detroit Magnate

MARTIN REVEALS NOTE Beatings Suffered By Two Agents Recalled

DETROIT, June 1—(UP)—The United Automobile Workers of America, promised the support of the Committee for Industrial Organization in the drive to unionize the plants of Henry Ford, summoned its Ford organizing committee into session today to plan new strategy in the membership drive.

DETROIT, June 1—(UP)—John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization pledged all its resources today in support of the drive of the United Automobile Workers of America to organize Henry Ford's 140,000 employees.

Describing the recent attack on Union Organizers Richard T. Franzen and Walter P. Reuther as "a flagrant outrage," Lewis, in a telegram to the auto union, urged it to intensify its organizing campaign in the plants of the Ford company and promised "every assistance."

The telegram was made public (Continued on Page Ten)

SUPREME COURT JUSTICES MEET FOR LAST TIME

WASHINGTON, June 1—(UP)—The nine supreme court justices whose word has spelled life or death for New Deal laws over the last three years met for the last time today in their spacious courtroom.

Their work for the term ends today. Only a few matters were scheduled for action. The justices planned to leave the humid and tense atmosphere of the capitol for their summer homes after the days session.

One will return to the bench no more. Justice Willis Van Devanter, one of four justices who frequently has opposed New Deal laws, will go into retirement at $20,000 a year.

Van Devanter's retirement will probably alter the balance of power between liberals and conservatives on the court. He may be joined in retirement over the summer by one or two other justices.

The retiring jurist and his associates arrived at the court building a few minutes before meeting time.

They arrived in taxicab and limousine, perspiring in the sultry heat of a humid noon-day sun. They proceeded at once to their air-cooled robing room.

William Heffner Reaches 95th Birthday Anniversary

William Heffner, of E. Mound street, quietly celebrated his 95th birthday anniversary, Tuesday, at his home.

Many cards and flowers were received by Mr. Heffner during the day. A family dinner is planned at 6 o'clock. Covers will be placed for Mrs. Harvey Heffner and daughter, Miss Mary, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heffner, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heffner and son William Bennett Heffner, Dr. George Heffner, and the Rev. George L. Troutman.

BRITAIN'S NEWSREELS MAY NOT USE 'SHOTS' OF WINDSOR'S WEDDING

LONDON, June 1—(UP)—It was reliably reported today that British newsreel companies have received strong but indirect hints from official quarters that it would be "good policy" not to include pictures of the wedding of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield in releases for the empire.

It was intimated that any company ignoring the hints might encounter difficulty in the future in obtaining passes for the filming of official functions. The companies were understood to have agreed to take the hints. Thus far, no attempt has been made to censor "still" photographs.

CITY DADS MAY ACT ON RATES

Marion To Confer With W. E. Wallace To Learn Committee's Wishes

City council will meet Wednesday evening, but whether or not the light rates will be up for consideration appears uncertain.

Frank Marion, chairman of council as a committee on the rates, said he planned to confer with W. E. Wallace, chairman of the committee of merchants, before Wednesday night to learn if the committee had any further recommendations.

Councilmen, officials of the electric company and members of the committee held a discussion last week on the rates. At that time, company officials informed those present they were not interested in a suggested schedule of rates prepared by the committee.

John C. Goeller, president of council, said the only business scheduled for the session was routine, unless some arrangements were worked out to obtain funds for preliminary work in connection with the sewage disposal plant. Funds are needed for digging test pits at the site and for other details.

RURAL ELECTRIC PROJECT CONFAB SET WEDNESDAY

Trustees of the South Central Rural Electric Co-Operative Association will meet in Lancaster Wednesday evening to make plans for opening the tri-county project.

The organization, including Pickaway, Fairfield and Perry counties, was granted $105,000 last week.

Since Fairfield county has the strongest branch of the project, it is expected the program will start there. The tri-county project includes about 740 miles of rural lines to service 3,138 homes and a total cost of $722,292.

Additional appropriations are expected after the first of July.

They eloped from Hollywood and were married here last night. Only 24 hours earlier, Martha Raye, the broad-mouthed comedian who has appeared in several pictures with Burns, eloped here with Hamilton Westmore, Hollywood makeup man.

EARHART BEGINS NEW GLOBE TOUR EARLY TUESDAY

Capt. Noonan, Navigator, Accompanies Famous Woman Pilot

SAN JUAN INITIAL GOAL Ace To Go To Natal, Brazil, Then Across Atlantic

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, Miami, Fla., June 1—(UP)—Amelia Earhart shot her twin-motored monoplane toward San Juan, Puerto Rico, today on a second attempted flight around the world.

The boyish-looking flier put her $80,000 ship through a dawn test of nearly an hour, checking the motors and instruments before deciding to launch the 28,000-mile trip scheduled to terminate at Oakland, Calif.

Miss Earhart lifted her plane, the same that crashed March 20 and halted her first attempt to circle the globe, from the runways at Municipal airport at 5:56 a. m. (EST).

At 6:40 a. m. she messaged Pan American airways by radio: "Everything okay. We are on our way."

Southern Course Taken Pan American was unable to determine her position at the time the message was received, but she reported her course was south and had been south since her take-off.

An hour later Pan American reported it could no longer make out her radio reports, although the signals indicated she still was in the air. Miss Earhart carried radio telephone equipment rather than a code transmitter.

The first planned stop was San Juan, 1,181 miles from Miami. At her base speed of 150 miles an hour, she would reach the Puerto Rican capital in eight hours. She was accompanied by her navigator, Capt. Fred L. Noonan, former clipper pilot.

Last March 17 Miss Earhart took off from Oakland on a westward flight around the world. It failed when she crashed at Honolulu after a tire blowout on the runways.

To Evade Bad Weather Reversal of her route on the present hop—to the eastward—will carry her past the worst anticipated weather sooner than if she were to make another attempted westward flight. The worst weather conditions grow worse daily at this season. The route of the flight was near the Equator most of the way.

Attempt to Evade Tax Payments Hit by F.D.R.

WASHINGTON, June 1—(UP)—President Roosevelt today asked congress for new legislation at this session to halt widespread tax evasion and avoidance by a "minority of very rich individuals."

Mr. Roosevelt also requested that the treasury be given "all authority necessary" to expand and complete a preliminary investigation which he said revealed methods employed to escape federal levies.

Efforts at evasion of tax liability have been "so widespread and so amazing both in their boldness and their ingenuity," he said, "that further action without delay seems imperative." The president addressed a special message to congress which was read while he still was in Hyde Park.

Judge Kime to Speak At Scouters' Session

'Early Bird Breakfast' To Be Held Wednesday At 7:30 A. M.

The Pickaway County Boy Scout sustaining membership drive will get under way at an "Early Bird Breakfast" at Hanley's Tea Room Wednesday at 7:30 a. m. when the Harold L. Kime, municipal judge of Columbus, and leading exponent of the scout movement, will address some 50 men who have been mobilized by the Kiwanis club in its effort to achieve the goal which Pickaway county has set for itself. Residing at the meeting will be Renick Dunlap, member of both the National and Central Ohio Council of the Boy Scouts of America, and chairman of this year's membership appeal.

Scout men throughout the county are optimistic concerning the outcome of the campaign this year. James Smith, chairman of the Pickaway County district, and member of the Central Ohio Area Council executive board, said today that never in the history of the movement was there better prospect for continued and sustained growth in scouting in the county.

Others Meeting Goals Scout Executive Bob Heistand, reports that all of the other counties in the Central Ohio area are meeting their goals in former years and was very generous in his praise of the Kiwanis club for their leadership in this important undertaking.

At the present time, Pickaway county numbers seven troops, with additional troops now in process of organization. Pickaway county is joint owner to Camp Lazarus with the other counties in the area. The property is now valued at $100,000 and has ample facilities to accommodate all the camping activities for scouts in the area.

Troops in Pickaway county are now laying plans to participate in the annual summer training camp, which starts July 14 and closes August 24. Included on the staff of the camp, which is rated as one of the finest in the state, are: university graduates and junior and senior students, all of whom are experts in the field of woodcraft, campcraft, pioneering, swimming, life saving, and nature study. Included also, on the staff, is a senior medical student of the school of medicine, Ohio State university.

GERMANY, ITALY WARNED DANGER OF WAR GROWING

Nazis Send More Warships Into Spanish Water After Bombing

MUSSOLINI MAY ACT Almeria Refugees Fleeing Toward Safer Havens

BY UNITED PRESS Spanish War Developments

PARIS: Britain and France warn Germany and Italy that further direct action in Spain might have serious consequences.

ALMERIA: Refugees stream northward from devastated, almost deserted city.

BERLIN: More German warships en route to Mediterranean.

ROME: Reports circulated Mussolini is considering sending more men and material to Spain.

LONDON: Britain protests to Valencia at threat to British destroyer at Palma.

GIBRALTAR: 24 dead from Deutschland buried.

VALENCIA: Loyalists charged Deutschland deliberately provoked the bombing.

BY UNITED PRESS Britain and France, genuinely alarmed lest Germany and Italy start a general war by waging open warfare on loyalist Spain, exerted powerful diplomatic pressure today to calm the situation.

Conferences and negotiations went on in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and Geneva. The French and British presented the Nazi-Fascist "Berlin-Rome Axis" with an implicit warning that grave trouble might ensue if they took further direct action in the wake of the German shelling of Almeria.

Reich "Satisfied" Germany's attitude held out some hope. The Reich expressed itself satisfied that the destruction of Almeria had avenged the bombing of the Deutschland. At least an equal if not greater number of Spaniards were killed in retaliation for the killing of 24 sailors on the pocket battleship.

But the situation might change. Germany made it plain that any further incident would meet with equally swift retaliation.

Disquieting reports came from Rome. There were hints that now that Italy and Germany have withdrawn from the non-intervention agreement, Mussolini might consider open intervention and pour fresh men and materials into Spain.

Germany, tied to Italy by an understanding, presumably would (Continued on Page Ten)

Girl, 17, Injured

Miss Josephine Starkey, 17, of Groveport, was treated at the hospital for bruises that she received in an auto-truck collision on Route 56, about three miles east of the city. She was discharged after treatment. The accident was reported at 5:45 p. m., Monday.

Miss Starkey was riding in an auto driven by John Komives, Jr., 20, of 379 Morrill avenue, Columbus, going west on the road. Sheriff Charles Radcliff said Komives' car went into a ditch at a curve, then out on the road again, colliding with a truck driven by Oakley Thomas, Route 3, Laurelville, going east.

An auto driven by Phillip Deal, Cincinnati, was badly damaged Monday about 8 p. m. when it crashed into a guard rail along Route 104 near the home of Austin Rader. Mr. Deal, riding alone, escaped injury.

An auto owned and driven by Robert Lucas, 728 S. Seventeenth street, Columbus, was damaged about midnight Monday in a collision with a truck, owned by Columbus Wiley, Lucasville, Route 2. The accident occurred on Route 23 about five miles north of Circleville. The sheriff's department reported the auto struck the rear end of the truck. No one was hurt.

Occupants of two cars escaped injury Monday noon in an accident on Route 22, about a mile west of Circleville.

An auto driven by John Cassert, 42, of 803 Ross street, Tarentum, Pa., going east on the highway, skidded on a curve, struck a telephone pole, then swerved across the highway and collided with a car driven by Harold E. Price, 31, of 1617 Eleventh street, Portsmouth. The Price car was going west.

Steel common touched 96 1/2 off 4, rallied slightly, but fell back to the low. Other steels were off 1 to more than 2 points, with Inland at a new low for the year.

Railroad issues had losses ranging to more than 2 points. Non-ferrous metals were depressed more than 3 points in several instances. Motors were weak. General Motors dropped more than a point, while Chrysler was down more than 2.

GERMANY, ITALY WARNED DANGER OF WAR GROWING

Nazis Send More Warships Into Spanish Water After Bombing

MUSSOLINI MAY ACT

Almeria Refugees Fleeing Toward Safer Havens

BY UNITED PRESS

Spanish War Developments: PARIS: Britain and France warn Germany and Italy that further direct action in Spain might have serious consequences.

ALMERIA: Refugees stream northward from devastated, almost deserted city.

BERLIN—More German warships en route to Mediterranean.

ROME: Reports circulated Mussolini is considering sending more men and material to Spain.

LONDON: Britain protests to Valencia at threat to British destroyer at Palma.

GIBRALTAR: 24 dead from Deutschland buried.

VALENCIA: Loyalists charge Deutschland deliberately provoked the bombing.

BY UNITED PRESS

Britain and France, genuinely alarmed lest Germany and Italy start a general war by waging open warfare on loyalist Spain, exerted powerful diplomatic pressure today to calm the situation.

Conferences and negotiations went on in London, Paris, Berlin, Rome and Geneva. The French and British presented the Nazi-Fascist "Berlin-Rome Axis" with an implicit warning that grave trouble might ensue if they took further direct action in the wake of the German shelling of Almeria.

Reich "Satisfied"

Germany's attitude held out some hope. The Reich expressed itself satisfied that the destruction of Almeria had avenged the bombing of the Deutschland. At least an equal if not greater number of Spaniards were killed in retaliation for the killing of 24 sailors on the pocket battleship.

But the situation might change. Germany made it plain that any further incident would meet with equally swift retaliation.

Disquieting reports came from Rome. There were hints that now that Italy and Germany have withdrawn from the non-intervention agreement, Mussolini might consider open intervention and pour fresh men and materials into Spain.

SURVEY REPORTS TOLL ABOUT 300 NATION'S DEATH

BY UNITED PRESS

Memorial week-end deaths rose toward 300 throughout the nation today.

Of the millions who sought diversion or escape from the heat scores died in traffic accidents or were drowned. Other scores died in miscellaneous accidents—airplane crashes, shootings, falls and the like.

Automobile fatalities outnumbered drownings by about one and half to one.

Pennsylvania recorded 31 deaths, 16 attributed to traffic accidents, nine to drownings and the remainder to miscellaneous causes.

Massachusetts had 29 violent deaths, Michigan 25, Minnesota 18, Ohio 18 and Tennessee and Iowa 12 each.

Other deaths by states: New York 11, Indiana 11, Illinois 10, Missouri 9, North Carolina 8, Connecticut 8, District of Columbia 7, Virginia 6, North Dakota 4, South Dakota 3, Kansas 3, West Virginia 2, Oklahoma 1, Kentucky 1, Wisconsin 16, California 14, Oregon 8, Alabama 8, Arizona 3.

WASHINGTON PONDERERS WHETHER TO DECLARE GERMANY AND SPAIN AT WAR

CLASH OF ARMS FEARED IN NEW BOMBING CRISIS

President Has Power To Apply Provisions Of Neutrality Law

CAPITAL IS "HOPEFUL"

Nazis Barred From Seeking
Loans In United States

WASHINGTON, June 1.—(UP)—Administration officials today indicated this government will proceed slowly and cautiously in deciding whether to apply provisions of the recently enacted neutrality law to Germany as a result of the latest European crisis. They expressed hope that it will be solved without a clash of arms between any of Europe's major powers.

State department officials believe that the United States might disturb international peace by declaring formally at this time that a state of war exists between Germany and Spain as a result of the bombing of the German battleship Deutschland by Spanish loyalist airplanes and the retaliatory attack by German warships on the Spanish port of Almeria.

Power Provided

The neutrality law provides that "whenever the president shall find there exists a state of war" between two or more countries, he shall so proclaim that as a fact, and that he then shall proclaim the application equally to both or all countries involved in the "state of war" of the provisions of the neutrality law.

The neutrality law is already in effect against both loyalist and insurgent forces in Spain as a result of the 10-month civil war.

This law would place in effect an embargo on sales or shipment of "arms, ammunition or implements of war," including all types of aircraft, to Germany in event President Roosevelt should find a "state of war" actually exists between Germany and loyalist Spain.

It would prohibit American citizens from traveling on German ships; it would give the president discretionary powers to prohibit sales or exports or other commodities, except raw materials, to Germany, or to limit the amount of such sales or exports. It would give him discretionary power to "place Germany on a 'cash and carry' status for such materials or goods as she might be permitted to buy in this country.

Officials believe that a declaration by this government at this time that a "state of war" exists between Germany and loyalist Spain might serve to crystallize European national animosities, and to bring about the general European war which the French and British governments are striving to avert.

Airplanes Sold

Officials believe that Germany would not be seriously affected, at least for a time, by most of the provisions of the neutrality law. Germany is buying no "arms, ammunition or implements of war" from the United States, with the exception of a limited number of commercial airplanes.

The German government enjoys no financial credit in this country, and is barred from obtaining loans or floating bonds or other government securities in this country. These bars were raised by the Johnson law prohibiting further loans or credits to governments which are in default on their debts to the United States.

Germany would be hurt, however, by the prohibition on American travel on German ships or in Germany.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Rowe Return After Sixty Years

Former County Residents
Now Making Homes in
Decatur, Ill.

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Wesley Rowe and his wife, Kathryn, left the old home in Darbyville territory for the West, settling at Decatur, Ill. This was sixty years ago. Fred Rowe, the son, and his wife came through by auto bringing the parents from Decatur to Mt. Sterling in a single day's drive, 400 miles. Mr. Rowe is 86 and the wife 79. Stood the trip fine and wonderfully pleased to see the old home surroundings again. Mrs. Rowe's maiden name was Hurst and her home "long ago" was at Williamsport. Fred and Mrs. Rowe live in Decatur, he is with a bank and she is a former school teacher.

30 Years Later

As a part of the Ashville high graduating class in 1907 were Walter Hedges, Dr. Chester Rockey and Isaac Miller. Just thirty years later, in this 1937 class, were their three children, Lucile Hedges, Chester Rockey, Jr., and Mary Elizabeth Miller. This is news.

Voluntary Wheat

Last Fall, around September 1, Walter Hedges disked a 12-acre plot and sowed the same to alfalfa and timothy seed. About July 1 a crop of wheat had been harvested with the farm binder. Now, today, a volunteer wheat crop, looking like a 20-bushel-to-the-acre yield, is to be seen on the alfalfa-timothy field. This is something unusual and out of the ordinary line. This is news. Whenever you readers tramp around on any, wish you would put it over to us. Phone 79, evenings. Got a tom cat story yesterday that is worth knowing about. We'll give it to you a little later when we are not so busy. And this is so. Have a stack of stuff on hand and getting busier each day.

What Grades Mean

That may make it plain about the Ashville grade card letters, we are naming them and what they stand for. E, excellent; G, good; A, average; P, poor; F, failure. Were asked about this when we gave the letter standing of Mona Sampson. She had 67 E's if we remember correctly.

Near Tragedy

One of our fine little boys came near being an angel or something, just recently. He was down in the creek learning to swim and got in where it was beyond his depth. Another older lad seized the drowning boy by the hair to drag him to safety. Can't some method be devised to keep these youngsters within the bounds of safety when they are having their good time swimming.

Ashville Wins, 6-2

The ball game Sunday between the local Merchant team and Volunteers of America, Columbus, was a peppy affair, but the Ashville boys won in a 6-2 score. An umpire who knows the game and with enough energy to hand out his decisions and make 'em stick is needed. The people, many of them, like to see a good ball game and there is no reason why we can't have this kind here. We have a dandy bunch of ball players that will hold their own with the average team. Correct what needs it, and play ball.

Ashville Sale of Chattels

The sale of chattels of the late Ada VanVickie at public auction last Saturday by the executor Frank Hudson brought near $125. The sale was well attended and prices ruled fair. The VanVickie dwelling was sold at private sale ten days ago for $1200.

Teachers Busy

Asked Merl Smith, our seventh grade teacher, about his vacation work, if any, and he said "taking care of the garden with plenty of hoeing" would be labor plenty for him. Al Kauber has turned tinner at the "Buckeye" and Nolan Murphy is selling typewriters. The local school board will meet the second Tuesday of the month, which is June 8. The joint-board, Harrison-Ashville, will meet the third Monday, which is the 21st.

Residences Changed

The Fortners removed yesterday from the Squires property in Long street to the Mrs. Baker dwelling and store room in W. Main street. Mrs. Baker will occupy the dwelling made vacant by the Fortners. The last named, it is said, will operate a grocery at the Baker store room and Mr. Fortner to use the Baker barn for a garage.

Today's Recipes

CHICKEN SALAD—One chicken, two heads celery, six hard-boiled eggs, one teaspoon or more salt, according to taste, two onions, one-half cup capers (may be omitted). Wash chicken well, cover with boiling water, add salt and onions, and boil slowly until tender. Remove from fire and let chicken remain in broth until cold. Remove skin and bones and cut meat into small pieces. Cut celery and eggs fine and add to chicken. Mix with salad dressing and garnish with lettuce and celery tops, which have lain in ice water one hour to crisp. Sprinkle capers on top and serve, or allow guests to help themselves.

LAYER FRUIT CAKE Four eggs, two cups sugar, four cups flour, two teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon each nutmeg, allspice and cloves; two cups seeded raisins, one cup dried currants, one cup butter, one cup or glass jam one cup buttermilk. Mix well and bake in layers in slow oven. May take at least an hour. Put together with the following: Fillings: Four cups brown sugar, two cups water, butter size of egg. Boil until thick, take off fire and add one pound seeded raisins, one-half pound candied citron, one pound figs, one-half pound English walnuts, one-half pound almonds. You can make six layers out of this recipe, or divide into three, each and make two cakes of three fruit and nuts.

Vegetables Rout Pellagra

LAGRANGE, Tex. (UP)—A Calhoun county woman who two years ago was confined to her bed with an advanced case of pellagra now swings a hoe in the garden whose products brought her back to health. She was placed on a special diet, centered around vegetables grown in her own garden.

LUCK ON WING, CHINA TO GARY

GARY, Ind. (UP)—For honors in fairytale competition, Cinderella and her benevolent godmother have close rivals in Jacob L. Schwartz and his aunt, Blimie Ginsberg.

The fairytale lady won some fancy raiment, a couple of glass slippers and a pumpkin chariot. To Schwartz went $2,500 worth of jewelry, a collection of perforated Oriental coins and—a Chinese nightgown.

The quiet-mannered, 48-year-old tailor who operates a tiny shop in the Steel City, finds it hard to explain why the fortune—in the form of his aunt's will filed for probate in Gary Superior Court—should reach out thousands of miles across the Pacific and hand him such an odd assortment of riches. Miss Ginsberg, a resident of Peking (now Peiping), China, for many years, is survived by several other immediate relatives.

Writes for 43 Years

"The last time I saw my aunt was when I was 5 years old," Schwartz said. "I corresponded with her since then for nearly 43 years."

Miss Ginsberg, who died in 1935, operated her bizarre nightclub in the great walled city of Peking, capitol of China. But the lure of the Orient at present has little attraction for the quiet Gary tailor.

Schwartz prefers the whirr of the sewing machine and the hiss of the steam press to sing-song music and high-pitched conversation.

"What are you going to do with the property?" he was asked. "Keep it."

"Are you going to China to operate the nightclub?"

May Visit Club Later

"No, I have a friend in Tientsin, Oren Walker, an attorney, who will manage the club for me. However, I may go over there on a little trip next year when everything is settled."

Under the terms of the will Schwartz also receives diamonds valued at approximately $2,500 and a quantity of large Chinese dollars which have little value.

Gary's new Oriental nightclub proprietor is married and has two children, Gladys, 8, and Kenneth, 13. He was wielded a needle in his little shop for 16 years.

FIRST FISH A WHOPPER

SILVERTON, Ore. (UP)—Mrs. Eliza Hathaway, 86, had never fished in her life, but she tells a fish tale as unique as those told by veteran sportsmen. Hearing a thrashing in the creek near her home at Silverton, she investigated and found a 15-inch trout impaled on a willow limb. She picked up the trout, her first and only catch.

Aga Khan, Others Send Gifts to Duke, Wally

By WEBB MILLER

MONTS, France, June 1.—(UP)—This tiny French village completed preparations today for the climax of a history-making romance—the marriage of Edward VIII of Great Britain to Mrs. Wallis Warfield, an American-born divorcee.

The former king of the world's greatest empire, who abandoned his throne for "the woman I love," will be married Thursday in the music room of the stately Chateau De Candé by the mayor of Monts, Dr. Charles Mercier.

The ancient chateau, patrolled by French police and Scotland Yard agents as if it were a fortress, was the center of great excitement. Edward, now the Duke of Windsor, and his bride-to-be were receiving wedding guests and hundreds of gifts which came from all parts of the world.

Trip Itinerary Secret

The duke and Mrs. Warfield planned to leave on their honeymoon immediately following the simple, brief ceremony, but their itinerary was a secret guarded carefully by the chateau staff.

So many gifts had arrived that the duke was forced to call on his equerry, Dudley Forwood, to assist in opening them. By special messenger from Paris came jewelry from the Aga Khan, one of the world's richest men.

The regular mail brought trinkets from the less wealthy—men and women who sympathized with the duke in his decision to forsake the British crown for the vivacious American woman.

My invitation to the wedding was typewritten on Mrs. Warfield's blue stationery. It read almost like a police "pass," such as a reporter in the United States would receive to attend a government function: "Please admit to the Chateau De Candé on June 3 Mr. Miller, the representative of the United Press. (signed) Dudley Forwood."

Monts will declare a holiday on Thursday. The streets already were alive with tourists. Shops were decorated with British and American flags and gay bunting. Overcast skies, which warned of more rain, could not lessen the enthusiasm of the villagers.

Six New Trunks

Vans shuttled back and forth between the chateau, the railroad station and the postoffice, delivering guests' luggage, wedding gifts and six new trunks for Mrs. Warfield's trousseau. The duke prevailed on his fiancée to engage another personal maid, as will befit her position as the Duchess of Windsor. She had been served only by an English maid, who accompanied her from London on the dark night when Edward was debating whether the British crown was more important than love, but now she has engaged a French woman who formerly was personal maid to her close friend, Mrs. Charles E. Bedaux.

Herman L. Rogers, the duke's American spokesman and host at the chateau, confirmed reports that the duke would place a gold wedding ring on Mrs. Warfield's finger. The duke will speak at a wedding breakfast at which champagne and cake will be served to the small circle of friends to whom invitations have been extended.

The music room was filled with flowers, some of which were sent from Paris, others from the surrounding countryside. The quaint organ has been tested and pronounced in excellent condition. Mayor Mercier has completed rehearsals of the civil ceremony which will make the duke and Mrs. Warfield man and wife.

KINGSTON

Miss Ora J. Rittenour entertained at her pleasant country home, Maple Bend, on Wednesday at a one o'clock luncheon. The home was beautifully decorated with baskets of garden flowers. Those enjoying the day were Mrs. J. P. Gardner, Mrs. W. R. Sunderland, Mrs. Dennis H. Dreisbach, Mrs. Walter Parker, Mrs. Carrie Holderman, Mrs. Robert Brundage, Mrs. H. H. Snyder, Mrs. Egbert Freshour, Mrs. George Borders, Mrs. S. C. Lightner, Mrs. A. Danc Ellis, Mrs. Robert Cryder, Mrs. E. H. ## WAR OF TRIBES ENDED BY FLIER

SYDNEY (UP)—Planes are being used in Australia's outlying territories to break up battles between warring tribesmen by the simple process of scaring them into flight.

Charles Bates, district patrolman in New Guinea, has described the first triumph of aviation in this new field.

Bates had been informed that a sanguinary battle was in progress on a part of the island. He immediately hastened to the battle scene and informed the chiefs of the contending tribes that the warfare must cease. His edict, however, brought no results.

Cogitating now he should perform his duty as a patrolman and peace officer in the island, he learned that an aviator had just arrived at a nearby settlement. The flier, Kevin Parer, listened to Bates' plan and accepted. At once they took to the air for the scene of battle where some 600 warriors were lined up for the fray.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Rowe Return After Sixty Years

Former County Residents
Now Making Homes in
Decatur, Ill.

By S. D. FRIDLEY
Phone Ashville 79

Wesley Rowe and his wife, Kathryn, left the old home in Darbyville territory for the West, settling at Decatur, Ill. This was sixty years ago. Fred Rowe, the son, and his wife came through by auto bringing the parents from Decatur to Mt. Sterling in a single day's drive, 400 miles. Mr. Rowe is 86 and the wife 79. Stood the trip fine and wonderfully pleased to see the old home surroundings again. Mrs. Rowe's maiden name was Hurst and her home "long ago" was at Williamsport. Fred and Mrs. Rowe live in Decatur, he is with a bank and she is a former school teacher.

30 Years Later
As a part of the Ashville high graduating class in 1907 were Walter Hedges, Dr. Chester Rokey and Isaac Millar. Just thirty years later, in this 1937 class, were their three children, Lucille Hedges, Chester Rokey, Jr., and Mary Elizabeth Millar. This is news.

Voluntary Wheat
Last Fall, around September 1, Walter Hedges disked a 12-acre plot and sowed the same to alfalfa and timothy seed. About July 1 a crop of wheat had been harvested with the farm binder. Now, today, a volunteer wheat crop, looking like a 20-bushel-to-the-acre yield, is to be seen on the alfalfa-timothy field. This is something unusual and out of the ordinary line. This is news. Whenever you readers tramp around on any, wish you would put it over to us. Phone 79, evenings. Got a tom cat story yesterday that is worth knowing about. We'll give it to you a little later when we are not so busy. And this is so. Have a stack of stuff on hand and getting busier each day.

What Grades Mean
That we may make it plain about the Ashville grade card letters, we are naming them and what they stand for. E, excellent; G, good; A, average; P, poor; F, failure. Were asked about this when we gave the letter standing of Mona Sampill. She had 67 E's if we remember correctly.

Near Tragedy
One of our fine little boys came near being an angel or something, just recently. He was down in the creek learning to swim and got in where it was beyond his depth. Another older lad seized the drowning boy by the hair to drag him to safety. Can't some method be devised to keep these youngsters within the bounds of safety when they are having their good time swimming.

Ashville Wins, 6-2

The ball game Sunday between the local Merchant team and Volunteers of America, Columbus, was a peepless affair, but the Ashville boys won in a 6-2 score. An umpire who knows the game and with enough energy to haul out his decisions and make 'em stick is needed. The people, many of them, like to see a good ball game and there is no reason why we can't have this kind here. We have a dandy bunch of ball players that will hold their own with the average team. Correct what needs it, and play ball.

Sale of Chattels

The sale of chattels of the late Ada VanValkie at public auction last Saturday by the executor Frank Hudson brought near $125. The sale was well attended and prices ruled fair. The VanValkie dwelling was sold at private sale ten days ago for $1200.

Teachers Busy

Asked Merl Smith, our seventh grade teacher, about his vacation work, if any, and he said "taking care of the garden with plenty of hoeing" would be labor aplenty for him. Al Kauber has turned tinner at the "Buckeye" and Nolan Murphy is selling typewriters. The local school board will meet the second Tuesday of the month, which is June 8. The joint-board, Harrison-Ashville, will meet the third Monday, which is the 21st.

Residences Changed

The Fortners removed yesterday from the Squires property in Long street to the Mrs. Baker dwelling and store room in W. Main street. Mrs. Baker will occupy the dwelling made vacant by the Fortners. The last named, it is said, will operate a grocery at the Baker store room and Mr. Fortner to use the Baker barn for a garage.

Today's Recipes

CHICKEN SALAD—One chicken, two heads celery, six hard-boiled eggs, one teaspoon or more salt, according to taste, two onions, one-half cup capers (may be omitted). Wash chicken well, cover with boiling water, add salt and onions, and boil slowly until tender. Remove from fire and let chicken remain in broth until cold. Remove skin and bones and cut meat into small pieces. Cut celery and eggs fine and add to chicken. Mix with salad dressing and garnish with lettuce and celery tops, which have lain in ice water one hour to crisp. Sprinkle capers on top and serve, or allow guests to help themselves.

LAYER FRUIT CAKE—Four eggs, two cups sugar, four cups flour, two teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon each nutmeg, allspice and cloves; two cups seeded raisins, one cup dried currants, one cup butter, one cup or glass jam, one cup buttermilk. Mix well and bake in layers in slow oven. May take at least an hour. Put together with the following: Filling: Four cups brown sugar, two cups water, butter size of egg. Boil until thick, take off fire and add one pound seeded raisins, one-half pound candied citron, one pound figs, one-half pound English walnuts, one-half pound almonds. You can make six layers out of this recipe, or divide into three each and make two cakes. Chop fruit and nuts.

Vegetables Rout Pellagra

LAGRANGE, Tex. (UP)—A Calhoun county woman who two years ago was confined to her bed with an advanced case of pellagra now swings a hoe in the garden whose products brought her back to health. She was placed on a special diet, centered around vegetables grown in her own garden.

LUCK ON WING, CHINA TO GARY

GARY, Ind. (UP)—For honors in fairytale competition, Cinderella and her benevolent godmother have close rivals in Jacob L. Schwartz and his aunt, Blimie Ginsberg.

The fairytale lady won some fancy raiment, a couple of glass slippers and a pumpkin chariot. To Schwartz went $2,500 worth of jewelry, a collection of perforated Oriental coins and a Chinese nightgown.

The quiet-mannered, 48-year-old tailor who operates a tiny shop in the Steel City, finds it hard to explain why the fortune—in the form of his aunt's will filed for probate in Gary Superior Court—should reach out thousands of miles across the Pacific and hand him such an odd assortment of riches. Miss Ginsberg, a resident of Peking (now Peiping), China, for many years, is survived by several other immediate relatives.

Writes for 43 Years

"The last time I saw my aunt was when I was 5 years old," Schwartz said. "I corresponded with her since then for nearly 43 years."

Miss Ginsberg, who died in 1935, operated her bizarre nightclub in the great walled city of Peking, capital of China. But the lure of the Orient at present has little attraction for the quiet Gary tailor.

Schwartz prefers the whirl of the sewing machine and the hiss of the steam press to sing-song music and high-pitched conversation.

"What are you going to do with the property?" he was asked.

"Keep it."

"Are you going to China to operate the nightclub?"

May Visit Club Later
"No, I have a friend in Tientsin, Oren Walker, an attorney, who will manage the club for me. However, I may go over there on a little trip next year when everything is settled."

Under the terms of the will Schwartz also receives diamonds valued at approximately $2,500 and a quantity of large Chinese dollars which have little value.

Gary's new Oriental nightclub proprietor is married and has two children, Gladys, 8, and Kenneth, 13. He was wielded a needle in his little shop for 16 years.

FIRST FISH A WHOPPER

SILVERTON, Ore. (UP)—Mrs. Eliza Hathaway, 86, had never fished in her life, but she tells a fish tale as unique as those told by veteran sportsmen. Hearing a thrashing in the creek near her home at Silverton, she investigated and found a 15-inch trout impaled on a willow limb. She picked up the trout—her first and only catch.

Aga Khan, Others Send Gifts to Duke, Wally

By WEBB MILLER

MONTS, France, June 1.—(UP)—This tiny French village completed preparations today for the climax of a history-making romance—the marriage of Edward VIII of Great Britain to Mrs. Wallis Warfield, an American-born divorcee.

The former king of the world's greatest empire, who abandoned his throne for "the woman I love," will be married Thursday in the music room of the stately Chateau De Candé by the mayor of Monts, Dr. Charles Mercier.

The ancient chateau, patroled by French police and Scotland Yard agents as if it were a fortress, was the center of great excitement. Edward, now the Duke of Windsor, and his bride-to-be were receiving wedding guests and hundreds of gifts which came from all parts of the world.

Trip Itinerary Secret
The duke and Mrs. Warfield planned to leave on their honeymoon immediately following the simple, brief ceremony, but their itinerary was a secret guarded carefully by the chateau staff.

So many gifts had arrived that the duke was forced to call on his equerry, Dudley Forwood, to assist in opening them. By special messenger from Paris came jewelry from the Aga Khan, one of the world's richest men.

The regular mail brought trinkets from the less wealthy—men and women who sympathized with the duke in his decision to forsake the British crown for the vivacious American woman.

My invitation to the wedding was typewritten on Mrs. Warfield's blue stationery. It read almost like a police "pass," such as a reporter in the United States would receive to attend a government function:

"Please admit to the Chateau Candé on June 3 Mr. Miller, the representative of the United Press. (signed) Dudley Forwood."

Monts will declare a holiday on Thursday. The streets already were alive with tourists. Shops were decorated with British and American flags and gay bunting. Overcast skies, which warned of more rain, could not lessen the enthusiasm of the villagers.

Six New Trunks

Vans shuttled back and forth between the chateau, the railroad station and the postoffice, delivering guests' luggage, wedding gifts and six new trunks for Mrs. Warfield's trousseau. The duke prevailed on his fiancée to engage another personal maid, as will benefit her position as the Duchess of Windsor. She had been served only by an English maid, who accompanied her from London on the dark night when Edward was debating whether the British crown was more important than love, but now she has engaged a French woman who formerly was personal maid to her close friend, Mrs. Charles E. Bédau.

Herman L. Rogers, the duke's American spokesman and host at the chateau, confirmed reports that the duke would place a gold wedding ring on Mrs. Warfield's finger. The duke will speak at a wedding breakfast at which champagne and cake will be served to the small circle of friends to whom invitations have been extended.

The music room was filled with flowers, some of which were sent from Paris, others from the surrounding countryside. The quaint organ has been tested and pronounced in excellent condition. Mayor Mercier has completed rehearsals of the civil ceremony which will make the duke and Mrs. Warfield man and wife.

KINGSTON

Miss Ora J. Rittenour entertained at her pleasant country home, Maple Bend, on Wednesday at a one o'clock luncheon. The home was beautifully decorated with baskets of garden flowers. Those enjoying the day were Mrs. J. P. Gardner, Mrs. W. H. Sunderland, Mrs. Dennis H. Dreishach, Mrs. Walter Parker, Mrs. Carrie Holderman, Mrs. Robert Brundage, Mrs. H. H. Snyder, Mrs. Egbert Freshour, Mrs. George Eiders, Mrs. S. C. Lightner, Mrs. A. Dane Ellis, Mrs. Robert Cryder, Mrs. E. H. DERBY ON RADIO
The running of the world's most celebrated horse race, the English Derby at Epsom Downs will be brought to American listeners on Wednesday June 2, at 8:45 a. m. over the NBC-Blue network, via BBC short wave.

The Derby this year is expected to be the most colorful in its long history, which began in 1780. More than 250,000 are expected to attend.

RUGGLES WITH BING
Charlie Ruggles, the hesitant comedian of the movies, teams up with Bing Crosby and Bob Burns in the Music Hall Thursday night. The three will stage one of those famous Music Hall ribbing matches. It is Ruggles' first visit to "the Hall."

Other guest stars in the broadcast over the NBC red network at 9 p. m. (EST) are Natalie Bodanya, the soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company and McClelland Barclay, the illustrator.

Miss Bodanya was a radio singer some five years ago and was one of the first guest stars ever auditioned for Rudy Vallee's program. She gave up radio to go abroad to study and returned last season to join the Metropolitan. Now she follows many other Metropolitan stars to a guest "spot" in the Music Hall.

Barclay is one of the best known artists doing illustrations for the popular magazines today. He is scheduled for a Crosby interview.

FINAL CONCERT
The concluding broadcast of the Promenade Concerts for this season will be heard on Sunday, June 6, in the form of a "Pacific Coast Good Neighbor Concert." It will originate in the vast Hollywood Bowl at Los Angeles, California, and will be transmitted by the nationwide hook-up of the NBC-WJZ ("Blue") network usual to these concerts, between 7 and 8 p. m. EST.

Participating in the gala concluding concert will be the noted Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra with its world famous conductor, Dr. Otto Klemperer. Luciezia Bori, former prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Joseph Bentonelli, tenor soloists, of the Metropolitan will be the

WAR OF TRIBES ENDED BY FLIER

SYDNEY (UP)—Planes are being used in Australia's outlying territories to break up battles between warring tribesmen by the simple process of scaring them into flight.

Charles Bates, district patrolman in New Guinea, has described the first triumph of aviation in this new field.

Bates had been informed that a sanguinary battle was in progress on a part of the island. He immediately hastened to the battle scene and informed the chiefs of the contending tribes that the warfare must cease. His edict, however, brought no results.

Cogitating now he should perform his duty as a patrolman and peace officer in the island, he learned that an aviator had just arrived at a nearby settlement. The flier, Kevin Parer, listened to Bates' plan and accepted. At once they took to the air for the scene of battle where some 600 warriors were lined up for the fray.

Other guest stars in the broadcast over the NBC red network at 9 p. m. (EST) are Natalie Bodanya, the soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company and McClelland Barclay, the illustrator.

CHICAGO STRIKE FRONT IS QUIET FOLLOWING RIOT

Curb On Violence Pledged After Governor Calls Conference

SETTLEMENT FAR AWAY

Recognition By Independent Plants Demanded

CHICAGO, June 1.—(UP)—An unofficial peace rode today in the wake of the Chicago steel riots. Five were dead, and 97, including 22 police, were recovering from injuries. Strikers insisted the police officers who fired fatal shots into their ranks before the Republic Steel company gates be charged with murder. Police announced the 67 men and women snatched from the 1,500 whom they battled with tear gas, revolvers and riot sticks would be charged with intent to commit an illegal act.

A closed conference in which both sides appeared to give vent to the bitter feeling which culminated in Sunday's bloodshed brought promises of a curb on violence.

Horner Gets Promise
"I have obtained new assurances from all parties concerned that no provocative acts will be permitted," Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois announced.

"Peaceful picketing will be permitted."

"There will be no martial law unless Chicago city police prove unable to preserve law and order."

The let-down from violence bore no promise of settlement of the strike called by the steel workers organizing committee in northern plants of the Republic Steel Corp., Inland Steel Corp., and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, New York and Michigan.

"You can mark it down that this strike isn't going to end until an agreement is signed," Van A. Bittner, S.W.O.C. regional director announced. "As far as results are concerned, the conference wasn't worth a damn."

The S.W.O.C. demands a signed agreement of recognition by the three independents.

SINCLAIR LEWIS WARNS WRITERS OF ILL TEMPER

NEW LONDON, Conn. (UP)—Sinclair Lewis thinks it's a sign of bad temper when a writer, having become dissatisfied with a paragraph, tears it off the top of his typewriter.

"When I don't like what I've started to write," said Lewis, "I unroll the entire sheet and put in a fresh one."

"I don't think it's good practice to tear a partly written sheet out of a typewriter. It's a sign of bad temper. When you write you are your own master. A display of temper means you are quarrelling with yourself—quarrelling with your master. It isn't good to do that."

The novelist, touring New England by motor, recalled his first writing job on a Midwestern newspaper.

"I was fired from that job," he grinned, "but not until my boss was prepared to announce that my successor was already on a train heading for town."

LABOR COUNCIL GATHERS IN WOODMAN LODGE HALL

Thirty-five men attended a meeting of the Pickaway County Trades and Labor Council Monday night in the Woodman hall. A state organizer of the C. I. O. was scheduled to speak but failed to arrive. Members have sent for a charter in the national organization and expect it in the near future.

Members of the junior high classes and Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Costlow enjoyed a weiner roast at the Lozier farm on last Friday evening.

George Wright of Chicago and Mr. Bricker of Cincinnati called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wright and family on Saturday evening.

COTTON VILLAIN TO SO. FLORIDA

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Cotton may be king in most parts of the South but in southern Florida its standing is that of a public enemy, according to L. F. Curl, head of the Federal bureau of entomology here.

Cotton is not grown commercially in tropical south Florida and it is in the wild state that since 1932 entomologists have been hunting it out—seeking to eradicate it because it is host plant to the pink bollworm, the insect that has replaced the bollweevil as foremost enemy of domestic cotton.

Domestic cotton infestation by the pink bollworm was discovered in 1932 in north Florida near Lake City. A light infestation was found in the Fall of 1933 near Tifton, Ga. The discovery caused considerable alarm to the Department of Agriculture.

Up From Caribbean

Investigation by the department revealed that the pink bollworm apparently was coming into the southeastern United States by way of the Caribbean. Further investigation showed that the insect was breeding in wild cotton growing along the shorelines of Florida, and that there was a sufficient amount of this cotton to breed an enormous number of pink bollworms.

Consequently, the government immediately began a control program which during the past four years has necessitated an expenditure of approximately $300,000.

Inspection of the cotton fields of north Florida and Georgia during 1935-36 showed no trace of pink bollworm in that area, indicating the success of control measures.

Five-Year Work Remains

According to Curl, five more years will be needed to complete the eradication of wild cotton in south Florida and insure safety to the domestic cotton fields of north Florida and the neighboring states of Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina.

Pink bollworm first invaded the United States in 1917, coming in by the Mexican border. Outbreak of the insect were discovered again in New Mexico in 1920-21. Infestation also diminishes the oil content of the seed and the total yield of the crop.

CANADA LOWERS WHEAT ACREAGE

OTTAWA, Ont. (UP)—Canadian farmers will plant nearly 500,000 acres less with wheat this year than in 1936, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, government statistical agency, estimates.

The bureau, basing its estimate on reports received from correspondents all over the country, places the 1937 wheat acreage at 24,367,800 acres, compared with 24,779,700 in 1936. This year's figure is 1,278,300 acres lower than the peak year of 1932, when 26,646,100 acres were planted.

Of this year's total acreage, 24,113,000 acres will be sown in the three prairie provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. Last year 25,552,000 acres were devoted to wheat in the prairies.

The bureau also forecast reductions in acreages to be planted with oats, flaxseed and mixed grains. Potato, barley and rye acreages will be higher.

Frank Marion, chairman of the local group, spoke on the aims of the organization.

CHICAGO STRIKE FRONT IS QUIET FOLLOWING RIOT

Curb On Violence Pledged
After Governor Calls
Conference

SETTLEMENT FAR AWAY
Recognition By Independent
Plants Demanded

CHICAGO, June 1.—(UP)—An unofficial peace rode today in the wake of the Chicago steel riots. Five were dead, and 97, including 22 police, were recovering from injuries. Strikers insisted the police officers who fired fatal shots into their ranks before the Republic Steel company gates be charged with murder. Police announced the 67 men and women snatched from the 1,500 whom they battled with tear gas, revolvers and riot sticks would be charged with intent to commit an illegal act.

A closed conference in which both sides appeared to give vent to the bitter feeling which culminated in Sunday's bloodshed brought promises of a curb on violence.

Horner Gets Promise
"I have obtained new assurances from all parties concerned that no provocative acts will be permitted," Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois announced.

"Peaceful picketing will be permitted."

"There will be no martial law unless Chicago city police prove unable to preserve law and order."

The let-down from violence bore no promise of settlement of the strike called by the steel workers organizing committee in northern plants of the Republic Steel Corp., Inland Steel Corp., and Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, New York and Michigan.

"You can mark it down that this strike isn't going to end until an agreement is signed," Van A. Bittner, S.W.O.C. regional director announced. "As far as results are concerned, the conference wasn't worth a damn."

The S.W.O.C. demands a signed agreement of recognition by the three independents.

ATLANTA

Nearly one hundred members and their guests attended the Alumni banquet in the school auditorium on Saturday evening.

The room was attractively decorated in blue and silver with silver stars and anchors adding much to the decorations. Following the three course dinner Oakley Turner, the toastmaster presented an interesting program and the participants in his most entertaining manner.

The scene was a boat and the participants were officials or just plain sailors. The class of '37 was presented by Supt. H. K. Costlow and musical numbers were offered by George Speakman and Willis Cleary. Talks were given by several alumni members, faculty and Rev. G. C. Reed of Clarksburg. This year's president was Bertus Bennett and secretary, Helen Skinner and treasurer, Phyllis Ater. Members of the nominating committee, Robert Campbell, Glenn Skinner and Wendell Tarbill have not announced next year's officers as yet.

Maynard and Wylie Campbell of Columbus enjoyed the week-end with Mrs. Florence Campbell and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwemley and sons, Bobby and George Howard of New Washington enjoyed the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Amos Duval and family. They attended the alumni banquet on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Edith Cleary and Martha Wright attended a 4-H Leaders training meeting in Circleville on Friday.

John Lamb and Allen Conrad, who are students at the University of Cincinnati, are spending the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lamb and Mrs. Alice Conrad.

Miss Louise Lozier was the guest of Robert Ferguson of Lakewood at the O. S. U. Senior Prom at the gym on the campus on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne DeLong of Columbus were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Skinner and daughters.

Members of the junior high classes and Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Costlow enjoyed a weiner roast at the Lozier farm on last Friday evening.

SINCLAIR LEWIS WARNS WRITERS OF ILL TEMPER

NEW LONDON, Conn. (UP)—Sinclair Lewis thinks it's a sign of bad temper when a writer, having become dissatisfied with a paragraph, tears it off the top of his typewriter.

"When I don't like what I've started to write," said Lewis, "I unroll the entire sheet and put in a fresh one."

"I don't think it's good practice to tear a partly written sheet out of a typewriter. It's a sign of bad temper. When you write you are your own master. A display of temper means you are quarreling with yourself—quarrelling with your master. It isn't good to do that."

The novelist, touring New England by motor, recalled his first writing job on a Midwestern newspaper.

"I was fired from that job," he grinned, "but not until my boss was prepared to announce that my successor was already on a train heading for town."

COTTON VILLAIN TO SO. FLORIDA

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Cotton may be king in most parts of the South but in southern Florida its standing is that of a public enemy, according to L. F. Curl, head of the Federal bureau of entomology here.

Cotton is not grown commercially in tropical south Florida and it is in the wild state that since 1932 entomologists have been hunting it out—seeking to eradicate it because it is host plant to the pink bollworm, the insect that has replaced the bollweevil as foremost enemy of domestic cotton.

Domestic cotton infestation by the pink bollworm was discovered in 1932 in north Florida near Lake City. A light infestation was found in the Fall of 1933 near Tifton, Ga. The discovery caused considerable alarm to the Department of Agriculture.

Up From Caribbean

Investigation by the department revealed that the pink bollworm apparently was coming into the southeastern United States by way of the Caribbean. Further investigation showed that the insect was breeding in wild cotton growing along the shorelines of south Florida, and that there was a sufficient amount of this cotton to breed an enormous number of pink bollworms.

Consequently, the government immediately began a control program which during the past four years has necessitated an expenditure of approximately $300,000.

Inspection of the cotton fields of north Florida and Georgia during 1935-36 showed no trace of pink bollworm in that area, indicating the success of control measures.

Five-Year Work Remains

According to Curl, five more years will be needed to complete the eradication of wild cotton in south Florida and insure safety to the domestic cotton fields of north Florida and the neighboring states of Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina.

Pink bollworm first invaded the United States in 1917, coming in by the Mexican border. Outbreak of the insect were discovered again in New Mexico in 1920-21. Infestation also diminishes the oil content of the seed and the total yield of the crop.

CANADA LOWERS WHEAT ACREAGE

OTTAWA, Ont. (UP)—Canadian farmers will plant nearly 500,000 acres less with wheat this year than in 1936, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, government statistical agency, estimates.

The bureau, basing its estimate on reports received from correspondents all over the country, places the 1937 wheat acreage at 24,367,800 acres, compared with 24,779,700 in 1936. This year's figure is 1,278,300 acres lower than the peak year of 1932, when 26,646,100 acres were planted.

Of this year's total acreage, 24,113,000 acres will be sown in the three prairie provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. Last year 25,552,000 acres were devoted to wheat in the prairies.

The bureau also forecast reductions in acreages to be planted with oats, flaxseed and mixed grains. Potato, barley and rye acreages will be higher.

Frank Marion, chairman of the local group, spoke on the aims of the organization.

SEARCH TO RAP ARMY TRAINING, INDUSTRIAL WAR

Social Welfare Committee
of Presbyterian Group
to Report Tuesday

CHRISTIANS IN DANGER

Strong Local Congregations,
Better Leadership Urged

COLUMBUS, June 1.—(UP)—Sweeping pronouncements against compulsory military training, industrial warfare, religious and racial persecution and dictatorship were anticipated in a social welfare committee report to the 149th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. today.

The report was expected to add another blast to the attack, accompanying a resolution adopted by the assembly yesterday, against national socialism's "demand" that the church recognize a divine revelation "in the person of the Führer, Adolf Hitler" along side that of Christ.

In the statement accompanying the resolution expressing "affectionate and fraternal greetings" from the American church to the church in Germany, Rev. Hugh T. Kerr, Pittsburgh said:

"The situation facing the Christian Church in Germany is critical. The church in Germany is facing extinction. We dare not stand aside and let our brethren fight the battle alone. If we do and the battle is lost, the time will come when we too will fight the battle alone."

Answer to Christians
The resolution, drawn up by the committee on church cooperation and union of which Kerr is chairman, said its expression was the answer to German Christians who asked if they "stood alone."

Dr. R. Graham Wilson, New York City, in a report on the committee on nation missions today the assembly of 900 commissioners that the "trend of America is away from religion."

Asserting that he could "speak with conviction" of the progress of the board's work but that we wanted to "face realities," Wilson said:

"We speak of America as a Christian nation and in a real sense it is. We pride ourselves upon the Christian faith of those who founded this nation. We gather here from the four corners of our land and hear of the progress of the church."

"But what are the facts?" he asked. "Let us not blind ourselves by them. Let us face realities. The trend of America is away from religion."

Citing a survey which showed that more than 66 percent of those who hold views on religion believe it is "losing ground," Wilson said:

Opinions Checked
"These are not the opinions of the enemies of religion. They are the opinions of the rank and file of American people of all classes, from all parts of the country. We cannot ignore them. We must be realistic. No polyantha attitude will suffice in the church today."

Wilson recommended a strengthening of local churches, church leadership and religious programs. He deplored the salaries paid "most of our ministers in aid-receiving and some of the so-called self-supporting churches" as a "disgrace to our denomination and to the Christian cause."

He urged the ministry be strengthened amongst the underprivileged.

The assembly refused to commit itself directly on President Roosevelt's supreme court reorganization plan but adopted a report, brought in by the bills and overtures committee headed by Rev. S. Willis McKelvey, Kansas City, in which "any encroachment" upon "constitutionally guaranteed" civil and religious liberty was "deplored and condemned."

Free Church: Free State

"We believe that a free church in a free state rests not only on constitutional guarantees but that the state itself is undergirded

Fascism Receives Another Blow As Would-Be "Hitler" of France Faces Trial for Organizing Again

NEW YORK, June 1.—The eyes of Europe are riveted upon France's would-be Hitler, who soon faces trial in Paris criminal court.

Colonel Francois de la Roque and five of his aids will be charged with resurrecting a forbidden political league. Punishment upon conviction ranges from a fine of 5,000 francs ($200) to a prison term up to two years.

The colonel, now head of the French Social party, is charged with the revival of the Croix de Feu (Cross of Fire), semi-military Fascist organization, of which he was the founder, and which was disbanded under an act of the chamber of deputies in the early summer of 1936.

Investigations of his new venture, the Parti Social, were begun last October. On April 5 the colonel and his aids were charged by an examining magistrate, on the grounds of much incriminating evidence, with having created the banned Croix de Feu in the shape of the Social party. As a result the judge bound the men over for trial in the criminal courts.

A Showdown
In the eyes of the public, this trial will necessarily constitute a showdown between Premier Blum's Popular Front and the Fascist forces of France. The colonel, always something of a firebrand, recently threatened: "If my party is dissolved, I shall not be responsible for what will happen."

But, as a matter of fact, de la Roque uttered similar words at the time of the dissolution of the Croix de Feu. Yet nothing occurred.

Fascism in western Europe seems definitely on the down grade. On April 11 Leon Degrelle, Belgium's "Baby Hitler," suffered an overwhelmingly defeat in an election in which he opposed Premier Van Zeland. In Paris as well as elsewhere, the surprising margin of the democratic prime minister's victory was interpreted as a definite indication of the waning tide of Fascism.

Threats Discounted
Thus the threats of Colonel de la Roque and his followers are discounted at the outset. Astute observers of France's political situation agree that even if the Fascist leader is sentenced or his party is dissolved, it would hardly cause any domestic disturbance of serious aspects.

Colonel Francois de la Roque now is 48, and of medium size and slender. While gray patches adorn his temples, he hardly looks his age. His style of oratory bears a curious resemblance to that of Mussolini.

He looks back upon a long army career. As a cavalry officer he took part, as a protégé of the late Marshal Lyautey, in the pre-war pacification campaign of Morocco. The World War saw him attached to the staff of General Foch. Though wounded, he participated after the armistice in the post-war defense of Poland against the invading Bolshevik armies by serving on the staff of the French General Weygand.

Begins Organizing
In 1929 he retired from active army service and organized his Croix de Feu organization, composed of war veterans. By 1934 the movement had gained tremendous momentum, numbering 200, and perpetuated by that truth, grace and character which are the result of the free and fearless proclamation of the gospel.

"We therefore call on all our people to cherish, guard and maintain the liberties which are ours both in the church and state—and which are guaranteed to us by the constitution of both church and state," the report said.

The report was a substitute for a resolution introduced by the Presbytery of Philadelphia north which protested passage by Congress of any measure that would render the U. S. Supreme Court "subservient to the executive or legislative branches of government."

The committee on the uses of the new leisure is getting ready to report, when, ironically, the new leisure is on its way out.

Several years passed without word from Hein following his disappearance in 1915. Then relatives heard he was in Canada. They enlisted the aid of the Royal Mounted, but that organization failed to produce any trace of him. Search in the United States also was ineffectual.

Anna Hein, wife of the missing man, died more than a year ago. The declaration that Hein was legally dead permitted each of his children to claim one-seventh of the estate.

Col. Francois de la Roque, French Nazi leader, faces trial in criminal court on charges of resurrecting a forbidden political league.

000 active members. The core of the Croix de Feu were the so-called "Brisards", men with front-line service chevrons. But the colonel called everybody "Copain", the French equivalent to the American "Buddy".

In private life Francois is the father of five children. The eldest is Francois, a son, who now is 20, and is an active leader of the Versailles group of the Social party. A comely daughter, Nadine, aged 19, works in the Paris offices of the organization as her father's secretary. Of the other children, the colonel proudly claims that each does his or her part in the movement.

The Parti Social claims a membership of 2,000,000. Reliable advice, however, has it that this includes every woman and child of each member, thus fixing the real number of enrolled voters at a fraction of that amount.

ROYAL MOUNTED FAILS, MISSING MAN HELD DEAD

WICHITA, Kans. (UP)—Martin Hein, who left an Andale, Kans., farm for a "short walk" 21 years ago and disappeared, has been declared legally dead after a futile search in which the Royal Canadian Mounted Police participated.

Judge Grover Pierpont said under Kansas law it was possible to declare persons legally dead when no trace had been found of them in seven years.

Pat Warnick of Wichita, attorney for Hein's seven children, said Hein left two profitable farms and considerable Andale city property.

Several years passed without word from Hein following his disappearance in 1915. Then relatives heard he was in Canada. They enlisted the aid of the Royal Mounted, but that organization failed to produce any trace of him. Search in the United States also was ineffectual.

Anna Hein, wife of the missing man, died more than a year ago. The declaration that Hein was legally dead permitted each of his children to claim one-seventh of the estate.

HARDSHIPS ARE SUFFERED

Government Urged to Buy
Drought-Damaged Land

PHOENIX, ARIZ. June 1.—(UP)—The devastating drought in the nation's "dust bowl" the past few ruined farmers and their families on a new "push to the west" in search of happier and richer futures.

They suffer hardships reminding of stories they read of the '40s, who pioneered the west in ramshackle covered wagons, hoping to find gold and happiness in the streams of California.

They come from Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas.

But this time, the "modern pioneers" are leading their families and possessions into battered automobiles, heading for the west—and hoping.

Many have settled in Arizona and are working in the lettuce, strawberry, cantaloupe and cotton fields. Others—and they are thousands—never had a destination.

Some Favor Northwest
Still others hope eventually to reach the Pacific Northwest where they feel they can find security and contentment in the fertile hills and valleys.

All tell the same story of their departure: "We left because of the drought."

Most say they endured the hardships of the crop-shattering dust storms "until we lost everything."

The task of finding shelter and food on their desperate trek isn't easy, they agree.

A family that settled some months ago on the outskirts of Glendale, Ariz., a suburb of Phoenix, is Mr. and Mrs. A. M. McLaughlin of Buffalo, Okla. Her family raised wheat—until the dust storm came.

"We tried time and again to raise crops, but the dust storms and drought came on and caused us to lose everything. We are looking for a home now," they said.

The McLaughlins have two children. Their livelihood is gained picking strawberries.

dren toddle about, some half-naked and some dressed in rags. The men, when not working in the fields, sit about on boxes, smoking pipes or cigarettes, and swapping their "dreams."

Federal relief authorities, cognizant of the situation, estimated recently that 100,000 farmers are "on the move" westward, fleeing the area where their crops and businesses were ruined.

One Washington official was quoted as saying:

"Most of these farmers do not want to go on relief. They are seeking new homes where they can follow the only occupation they know—farming."

Dr. Paul B. Sears, University of Oklahoma professor, declared in a recent address at Chicago that one out of four homes in the "dust bowl" has been abandoned. He urged the federal government to buy drought damaged land and return it to a "non-productive" state.

He said but one-half of the 12,000,000 acres of farm land is in use. One-fifth, he said, has been deserted.

From his rich experience as bullwhacker, plainsman and wilderness settler Hooker has drawn poetry, sage sayings and homely advice which he has penned for

A monument was erected in 1930 on the site where Hooker years ago built his cabin in the LaBonte creek wilderness. Another was set up in 1931 at the intersection of the Yellowstone and Bozeman trails over which he passed when the pioneers were winning the west.

Hooker has returned to his native state to live on a Lake Beulah, Wis., farm only a few miles from Fond du Lac, where he was born on May 17, 1856. With his wife, Mary Meyers Hooker, he directs a Milwaukee literary agents and publishers business. He also is a director of the Buffalo Bill museum of Cody, Wyo.

CHURCH TO RAP
ARMY TRAINING,
INDUSTRIAL WAR

Social Welfare Committee
of Presbyterian Group
to Report Tuesday

CHRISTIANS IN DANGER

Strong Local Congregations,
Better Leadership Urged

COLUMBUS, June 1—(UP)—Sweeping pronouncements against compulsory military training, industrial warfare, religious and racial persecution and dictatorships were anticipated in a social welfare committee report to the 149th. general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. today.

The report was expected to add another blast to the attack, accompanying a resolution adopted by the assembly yesterday, against national socialism's "demand" that the church recognize a divine revelation "in the person of the fuhrer, Adolf Hitler" along side that of Christ.

In the statement accompanying the resolution expressing "affectionate and fraternal greetings" from the American church, Rev. Hugh T. Kerr, Pittsburgh said:

"The situation facing the Christian Church in Germany is critical. The church in Germany is facing extinction. We dare not stand aside and let our brethren fight the battle alone. If we do and the battle is lost, the time will come when we too will fight the battle alone."

Answer to Christians

The resolution, drawn up by the committee on church cooperation and union of which Kerr is chairman, said its expression was the answer to German Christians who asked if they "stood alone."

Dr. R. Graham Wilson, New York City, in a report on the committee on nation missions today the assembly of 900 commissioners that the "trend of America is away from religion."

Asserting that he could "speak with conviction" of the progress of the board's work but that we wanted to "face realities," Wilson said:

"We speak of America as a Christian nation and in a real sense it is. We pride ourselves upon the Christian faith of those who founded this nation. We gather here from the four corners of our land and hear of the progress of the church. "But what are the facts?" he asked. "Let us not blind ourselves by them. Let us face realities. The trend of America is away from religion."

Citing a survey which showed that more than 66 percent of those who hold views on religion believe it is "losing ground," Wilson said:

Opinions Checked

"These are not the opinions of the enemies of religion. They are the opinions of the rank and file of American people of all classes, from all parts of the country. We cannot ignore them. We must be realistic. No polyantha attitude will suffice in the church today."

Wilson recommended a strengthening of local churches, church leadership and religious programs. He deplored the salaries paid "most of our ministers in aid-receiving and some of the so-called self-supporting churches" as a "disgrace to our denomination and to the Christian cause."

He urged the ministry be strengthened amongst the underprivileged.

The assembly refused to commit itself directly on President Roosevelt's supreme court reorganization plan but adopted a report, brought in by the bills and overtures committee headed by Rev. S. Willis McKelvey, Kansas City, in which "any encroachment" upon "constitutionally guaranteed" civil and religious liberty was "deplored and condemned."

Fascism Receives Another Blow
As Would-Be "Hitler" of France
Faces Trial for Organizing Again

NEW YORK, June 1—The eyes of Europe are riveted upon France's would-be Hitler, who soon faces trial in Paris criminal court.

Colonel Francois de la Roque and five of his aids will be charged with resurrecting a forbidden political league. Punishment upon conviction ranges from a fine of 5,000 francs ($200) to a prison term up to two years.

The colonel, now head of the French Social party, is charged with the revival of the Croix de Feu (Cross of Fire), semi-military Fascist organization, of which he was the founder, and which was disbanded under an act of the chamber of deputies in the early summer of 1936.

Investigations of his new venture, the Parti Sociale, were begun last October. On April 5 the colonel and his aids were charged by an examining magistrate, on the grounds of much incriminating evidence, with having created the banned Croix de Feu in the shape of the Social party. As a result the judge bound the men over for trial in the criminal courts.

A Showdown

In the eyes of the public, this trial will necessarily constitute a showdown between Premier Blum's Popular Front and the Fascist forces of France. The colonel, always something of a firebrand, recently threatened: "If my party is dissolved, I shall not be responsible for what will happen."

But, as a matter of fact, de la Roque uttered similar words at the time of the dissolution of the Croix de Feu. Yet nothing occurred.

Fascism in western Europe seems definitely on the down grade. On April 11 Leon Degrelle, Belgium's "Baby Hitler," suffered an overwhelmingly defeat in an election in which he opposed Premier Van Zeland. In Paris, as well as elsewhere, the surprising margin of the democratic prime minister's victory was interpreted as a definite indication of the waning tide of Fascism.

Threats Discounted

Thus the threats of Colonel de la Roque and his followers are discounted at the outset. Astute observers of France's political situation agree that even if the Fascist leader is sentenced or his party is dissolved, it would hardly cause any domestic disturbance of serious aspects.

Colonel Francois de la Roque now is 48, of medium size and slender. While gray patches adorn his temples, he hardly looks his age. His style of oratory bears a curious resemblance to that of Mussolini.

He looks back upon a long army career. As a cavalry officer he took part as a protégé of the late Marshal Lyaute, in the pre-war pacification campaign of Morocco. The World War saw him attached to the staff of General Foch. Though wounded, he participated after the armistice in the post-war defense of Poland against the invading Bolshevik armies by serving on the staff of the French General Weygand.

Begins Organizing

In 1929 he retired from active army service and organized his Croix de Feu organization, composed of war veterans. By 1934 the movement had gained tremendous momentum, numbering 200, and perpetuated by that truth, grace and character which are the result of the free and fearless proclamation of the gospel.

"We therefore call on all our people to cherish, guard and maintain the liberties which are ours—both in the church and state—and which are guaranteed to us by the constitution of both church and state," the report said.

The report was a substitute for a resolution introduced by the Presbytery of Philadelphia north which protested passage by Congress of any measure that would render the U. S. Supreme Court "subservient to the executive or legislative branches of government."

Col. Francois de la Roque, French Nazi leader, faces trial in criminal court on charges of resurrecting a forbidden political league.

000 active members. The core of the Croix de Feu were the so-called "Brisards," men with front-line service chevrons. But the colonel called everybody "Copain," the French equivalent to the American "Buddy."

In private life Francois is the father of five children. The eldest is Francois, a son, who now is 20, and is an active leader of the Versailles group of the Social party. A comely daughter, Nadine, aged 19, works in the Paris offices of the organization as her father's secretary. Of the other children, the colonel proudly claims that each does his or her part in the movement.

The Parti Sociale claims a membership of 2,000,000. Reliable advice, however, has it that this includes every woman and child of each member, thus fixing the real number of enrolled voters at a fraction of that amount.

ROYAL MOUNTED
FAILS, MISSING
MAN HELD DEAD

WICHITA, Kans. (UP)—Martin Hein, who left an Andale, Kans., farm for a "short walk" 21 years ago and disappeared, has been declared legally dead after a futile search in which the Royal Canadian Mounted Police participated. Judge Grover Pierpont said under Kansas law it was possible to declare persons legally dead when no trace had been found of them in seven years.

Pat Warnick of Wichita, attorney for Hein's seven children, said Hein left two profitable farms and considerable Andale city property.

Several years passed without word from Hein following his disappearance in 1915. Then relatives heard he was in Canada. They enlisted the aid of the Royal Mounted, but that organization failed to produce any trace of him. Search in the United States also was ineffectual.

Anna Hein, wife of the missing man, died more than a year ago. The declaration that Hein was legally dead permitted each of his children to claim one-seventh of the estate.

The committee on the uses of the new leisure is getting ready to report, when, ironically, the new leisure is on its way out.

FARMERS MOVE

May Settle in Arizona, Others
Head Toward Pacific

HARDSHIPS ARE SUFFERED

Government Urged to Buy
Drought-Damaged Land

PHOENIX, Ariz. June 1.—(UP)—The devastating drought in the nation's "dust bowl" the past few ruined farmers and their families on a new "push to the west" in search of happier and richer futures.

They suffer hardships, reminding of stories they read of the '40ers, who pioneered the west in ramshackle covered wagons, hoping to find gold and happiness in the streams of California.

They come from Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas.

But this time, the "modern pioneers" are leading their families and possessions into battered automobiles, heading for the west—and hoping.

Many have settled in Arizona and are working in the lettuce, strawberry, cantaloupe and cotton fields. Others—and they are thousands—never had a destination.

Some Favor Northwest

Still others hope eventually to reach the Pacific Northwest where they feel they can find security and contentment in the fertile hills and valleys.

All tell the same story of their departure: "We left because of the drought."

Most say they endured the hardships of the crop-shattering dust storms "until we lost everything."

The task of finding shelter and food on their desperate trek isn't easy, they agree.

A family that settled some months ago on the outskirts of Glendale, Ariz., a suburb of Phoenix, is Mr. and Mrs. A. M. McLaughlin of Buffalo, Okla. Her family raised wheat—until the dust storms came.

"We tried time and again to raise crops, but the dust storms and drought came along and caused us to lose everything. We are looking for a home now," they said.

The McLaughlins have two children. Their livelihood is gained picking strawberries.

GHOST STORIES OF OLD ENGLISH
SCHOOLS TOLD

LONDON (UP)—Great Britain's famous public schools, some of which date back to the earliest days of learning are haunted by the spirits of those who once worked in them, Spences Leeson, headmaster of Winchester believes.

"I believe most strongly in ghosts," he said in a speech at Twickenham. "They inhabit quite a number of schools and it is my profound conviction that in some way or another no one knows how—the spirits of the people who worked in these schools have become part of what is called their tradition or make up."

Leeson has been headmaster of Winchester, which dates from the close of the 14th century for two years, and formerly was head of Merchant Taylors', which is 300 years old.

Canon F. J. Shirley, headmaster of King's, Canterbury, supported Leeson's views.

"This school," he said, "is said to be the oldest in the country, and comprises buildings dating from the time of Lanfranc (Archbishop of Canterbury circa 1005-89). Night watchmen are said to have told how their dogs would start howling if made to pass certain spots. Although I have never seen a ghost, I fully believe there are people with psychic qualities conscious of the spiritual world."

The Inquiring Reporter
—Asks Circleville Housewives
about Their Gas Refrigerators

Note:—Recently The Gas Company's Inquiring Reporter visited a few of the many housewives in the city who enjoy Servel Electrolux gas refrigeration in their homes. They were most enthusiastic in answering the following question:

THE QUESTION—
"What features of your SERVEL
ELECTROLUX Gas Refrigerator do you like most?"

THE ANSWERS—

Mrs. Orion King, 148 W. High St.—
"The important features that I like about the Electrolux is its low cost of operation, safety, silence, and no maintenance expense. I can tell you I'd never have any other refrigerator in my home, it costs so very little to operate (About 50c per month.) We have never spent a cent for repairs. Of course, we would like one of the beautiful new models but our old Electrolux is serving so faithfully that it will be many years before we replace it."

Mrs. J. A. Speakman, 624 E. Mound St.—
"The most important thing is the low cost of operation. My Electrolux costs less than 60c per month to operate. I also like its silence, freedom from service and attractiveness as well as the way it keeps foods and makes desserts. There are many reasons why I prefer my gas refrigerator to any other but these are the most important. I am always glad to tell my friends about the Electrolux, for I know they will be as pleased as I am. If I were buying another refrigerator I would not even consider any other type."

Mrs. E. R. Austin, E. Main St.—
"It's the finest refrigerator I have ever owned. I've had mine for two years and our gas bill is only slightly higher. I doubt if it costs as much as 2c per day to operate. Then it is silent, attractive and does not depreciate like other types of refrigerators. Every one who visits my home admires my gas refrigerator. I have several friends who have purchased an Electrolux and they too like its silence and know that it will continue to function as economically for years to come."

Mrs. C. O. Kerns, West Union Street.—

"There is nothing too good for me to say about my Electrolux. I could not get along without it. It does everything that could be expected of an automatic refrigerator. We are never without plenty of ice cubes. I am satisfied that the cost of operation is less than you advertise. The Electrolux is silent and requires no attention. My family is always glad to boost Electrolux. I would never be satisfied with any other form of refrigeration, unless it were one of the beautiful new models in Electrolux."

Mrs. A. W. Graham, Ashville.—
"Since purchasing my Electrolux gas refrigerator, we have noticed no increase in the gas bill. The savings in being able to cook a little more at one time, then store it in our Electrolux, has more than paid for the operation of it, to say nothing of the convenience it affords. It has been silent and free of any repairs or maintenance. I would not take $1000.00 for my Electrolux if I could not get another one to replace it."

FLOOD CONTROL PROJECT FUNDS ASKED BY MANY

$25,000,000 To Be Spent Along Ohio In Next Few Years

MARKHAM HAS BIG TASK

Army Engineer Chieftain To Go To Committee

WASHINGTON, June 1 (UP).—Strong congressional groups today began a drive to secure authorization for scores of new flood control projects in the lower Ohio valley.

Representatives from recently flooded states, aided by mayors, governors and local organizations, planned to demand their "urgent" projects, when the house flood control committee meets next Monday to map a bill.

President Roosevelt told Committee Chairman Will M. Whittington, D. Miss., recently that he thought the budget could stand new authorizations of an emergency character along the Ohio totalling about $25,000,000.

He figured that only about $11,000,000 would be needed during the next year on the program.

"I think it is going to be hard for us to hold down the bill within that limit," Whittington admitted.

Markham in Action

When the president made known his views, Major General Edward M. Markham, chief of army engineers, had submitted a report to the house committee on more than $700,000,000 of possible flood control projects—many located in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys.

Markham, who will be the first witness to testify, is expected to outline his ideas on which are the most urgent character. Representatives and local officials will follow him on the stand.

The new bill—if held within the president's ideas—would bring expenditures on flood control and rivers and harbors projects to about $210,000,000 during the coming 1938 fiscal year.

Meanwhile, the house appropriations sub-committee handling the non-military features of the war department funds measure for the 1938 fiscal year is putting final touches on its work.

If held to budgetary estimates, about $90,000,000 will be available for rivers and harbors projects, $22,500,000 for continuing work on the lower Mississippi flood control program approved last session, and $30,000,000 for similar activities in the omnibus act.

Compromise Reached

In addition, Mr. Roosevelt and house majority leader Sam Rayburn, D. Tex., worked out a compromise with rebellious house Democrats who sought to encourage a part of the $1,500,000,000 relief bill for flood control.

Under the agreement, the bills were assured that ample funds perhaps totalling $35,000,000 would be made available during the next year for continuing additional already authorized flood control projects. Relief labor would be used wherever practical.

TRAM LATE, OFFICIAL FINED BUDAPEST (UP).—Because a tram was 20 minutes late, M. Alexandre Patz, a director of the Budapest municipal tramways, was fined $25. He was held responsible for the delay which caused material losses to a number of passengers.

Man has many troubles and ailments, most of which disappear after eight hours of sleep.

All Denominations Worship At This Community Church; Urge Nation - Wide Unity

Ischua Union Church near Olean, N. Y., where all denominations worship.

Clyde W. Collins, pastor of the unique church.

OLEAN, N. Y.—A modern plan of united Christian worship by all denominations within one church—such as that expounded by Dr. E. Stanley Jones, Bishop William Manning, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and others—is being carried out in a tiny, white-frame church in the nearby village of Ischua. It was conceived as far back as 1861.

Nestled among the houses of the village, which is situated on the main highway between Olean and Buffalo, the church stands as a united House of Worship where people of all sects and beliefs gather during the week and on Sundays for prayer. Denominations represented in the church congregation include Methodists, Baptists, Catholics, Presbyterians, Swedish Lutherans and even Christian Scientists.

Founded in 1861 the present church structure, which was dedicated in 1900, was first built as a community church in 1861. Land on which the structure still stands was given for the building of a united church in 1860 by a pioneer resident of the section, Eleazer Densmore, whose descendants continue to take an active part in the affairs of the church.

Organizers of the church union at Ischua had no idea they might be among the leaders in a nationwide unity plan when their congregation was formed on the basis of Christian co-operation. But they are proving the idea works and thereby bearing out the contentions of Rockefeller, who recently aroused Protestant church groups throughout the nation with a suggestion for a union of Christian sects in the United States.

Rockefeller is not alone in his suggestion. His remarks were made in support of the unity plan proposed by Dr. Jones who has pointed out that changing times have brought new demands which churches, as separate denominations, cannot meet. Rockefeller went further in asserting the church, as it is organized at present as a man-made church, has "outlived its usefulness." For a time, the church unity plan at Ischua did not operate on a complete basis because the Baptist portion of the union congregation decided to leave and build its own structure. This was done, but after the Baptist structure had been destroyed by fire in 1929, this group came back into the union body and the church again is operating under a complete plan of unity as it originally began.

Governed by Committee

The "key" of the union organization is a central committee, composed of members of the various denominations. Church affairs, such as the hiring of the pastor, financial details and the like, are carried out by this committee. The congregations maintain their own organizations within the church in following their respective beliefs. But in the church services of worship, all unite as one congregation with the plan working out, as one officer of the central committee puts it, as "a give and take proposition for united worship."

Present pastor of the church, which is known as the Ischua Union Church, is Clyde W. Collins. The Reverend Mr. Collins preaches sermons that stress modern, interdenominational religion and differences that exist among the various beliefs represented in the congregation never are considered. He describes the unity plan as a "practical demonstration of co-operative Christianity."

Gravel Bar at Chenoweth Farm Holds Mystery

The body of an unidentified man, believed to have drowned while swimming, was found Monday afternoon along Darby creek near Orient.

Inmates of the Orient institution found the body while they were fishing. They notified institution officials. Sheriff Charles Radcliff and Coroner C. E. Bowers investigated.

The body, badly decomposed, was on a gravel bar at the farm of Harry Chenoweth near the county line. The creek had been out of bank for several days.

Officials believe the man had been swimming as the body was nude. Burial was made by the Norris funeral home of Grove City.

Orient officials said the man was not a patient in the state institution.

NO MORE SNAKE BITES

A FOUL blow has been struck mankind. It has been developed that modern medical treatment calls for alcohol as a pain killer, but not in connection with snake bites. The discouraging information was revealed at a regional meeting of the American College of Surgeons.

Instead of using a generous portion of whiskey to combat the nefarious ravages of poison caused by the bite of a snake, Dr. Bowman C. Crowell, of Chicago, said that an injection of an anti-venom was now the accepted thing.

We believe sincerely in science. We favor inoculation and vaccination. We believe that diet is feasible and not unhealthy. We believe in fresh vegetables for vitamins and do not frown too much on the sun lamps. Sea air is good for you and salt water is most beneficial. Rest periods are not to be despised and every one should get eight hours of sleep. We believe that we should not drink too much ice water in hot weather and should wear light clothing to avoid sunstroke.

We accept these and many other suggestions from medical science, but when it comes to a snake bite, we believe in whiskey and plenty of it. There are some brands of whiskey on the market today, if they were put to the test, would kill off a snake quicker than you could bat an eyelid. Just think what that would do to a little bit of poison. No sir, the injection of anti-venom is out. We will stick to the old-fashioned system.

DEATH ON THE HIGHWAY

WHILE deaths in motor car accidents have been showing a consistent gain this year, leading to a prediction that the total for 1937 would reach the appalling figure of 50,000, Memorial Day week-end set a new high in massacre on the highways.

Newspapers are full of lists of the dead, dying and injured. The casualty lists resemble dispatches from the Spanish war front. Safety drives and campaigns to educate drivers to the need for more caution appears to have had a reverse effect on automobile mortality statistics. Where a diminution of the slaughter was to have been expected, the blood-letting under automobile wheels appears to be permanently on the increase.

Although many experts have grappled with the problem, and many of their "solutions" have been put into effect, all remedial ideas so far advanced appear to have been proved of little value. People are dying under auto wheels in the United States

Knudsen, president of General Motors and referee for the day. Sitting in the shade of the judges' stand when Graham McNamee appeared hot and excited and plopped down for a breather before time to go on the air.

"There's Judge Landis," said Bob, and rushed off to get his autograph on his program, returning a moment later extending the booklet. On it was written "Gar Wood." Not an unusual mistake at all, for the high priest of baseball and the water speed king look very much alike. Noted Frank Hawks in animated conversation with Steve Hanagan, the world's highest paid press agent. Noted Dick Merrill, the famed Atlantic hopper, receiving final instructions as starter from Pop Myers, general manager of the track almost since the beginning.

They're off! Only auto race crowds do not say that. Fully half of the visitors assembled each year are seeing their first race and from them come expressions of wonder and surprise as the cars thunder down the home stretch on the first running lap. It was Wilbur Shaw almost all the way, chalking up record after record. And the finish was not so close as radio broadcasts and most newspaper stories indicated. With only 25 miles to go Shaw was slightly more than three miles ahead of the veteran Ralph Hepburn. Shaw slackened his speed to lessen danger of accident and to make more certain accumulation of the $40,000 first prize money that awaited the winner at the finishing line.

"Shaw apparently has the race won," came the announcer's voice over the loud speaker system. "He is just loafing along now, believing that he has plenty of speed left to win even if Hep does move close to him. Just loafing along folks and averaging only slightly more than 100 miles an hour." Just loafing along at 109 miles! I have a different idea about loafing. But Shaw, by comparison with his former speed, did appear to be moving slowly.

There's Merrill waving the checkered flag as Shaw thunders past with Hepburn a scant 20 yards behind. A long wait in traffic before escape from the speedway and then joining the parade of thousands and thousands of east-bound cars on the Old National Trail, homeward bound and over-anxious to fall into bed.

MAJORITY IN CONGRESS LIABILITY

WASHINGTON — A lot of behind-the-scenes factors are at the root of the increasing belligerency of Congress toward the President. Sum total of it all probably means that Roosevelt is going to have more and more trouble from within his own party.

In the early morning hours following the Roosevelt landslide of November 3, when it became apparent that the President would have the biggest majorities in history in both houses of Congress, Charley Michelson ruefully remarked:

"We're going to regret this." The day of regret now has arrived. The Democratic majorities in both the House and Senate are too top-heavy, too unwieldy, too disloyal, and last but not least, too lacking in pie. The patronage was dished out during the first four years, and now with more than 500 Democrats yapping on Capitol Hill, the cupboard is bare.

NO SUGARING

Here are four additional reasons for the congressional fireworks against the Administration:

1. Poor liaison between the White House and Capitol Hill. Roosevelt hasn't known what has been going on in Congress. His contact men have fallen down on the job. Charley West, who is supposed to do this, smirks, smiles but doesn't produce. Son James isn't supposed to talk to Congressmen and probably wouldn't help much if he did.

The White House has been neglecting to sugar up the congressional rank and file, and simultaneously the rank and file has forgotten that it was elected on Roosevelt's coat-tails.

PORK NEEDED

2. The boys on Capitol Hill need a Pork Bill. They have always had it in previous administrations, but in this one, pork distribution has gone to Harry Hopkins. They had nothing to say about it.

Pork is all-important for greasing political machines. They cannot run without it. Pork is not necessarily iniquitous, though it can be. Pork consists of good roads, inland waterways, harbor deepening, flood control, post offices, custom houses.

These are what increase a Congressman's political importance at home. Folks point to the new post office and say: "Congressman Jones brought us that." But during the New Deal, the folks say: "Harry Hopkins built us that."

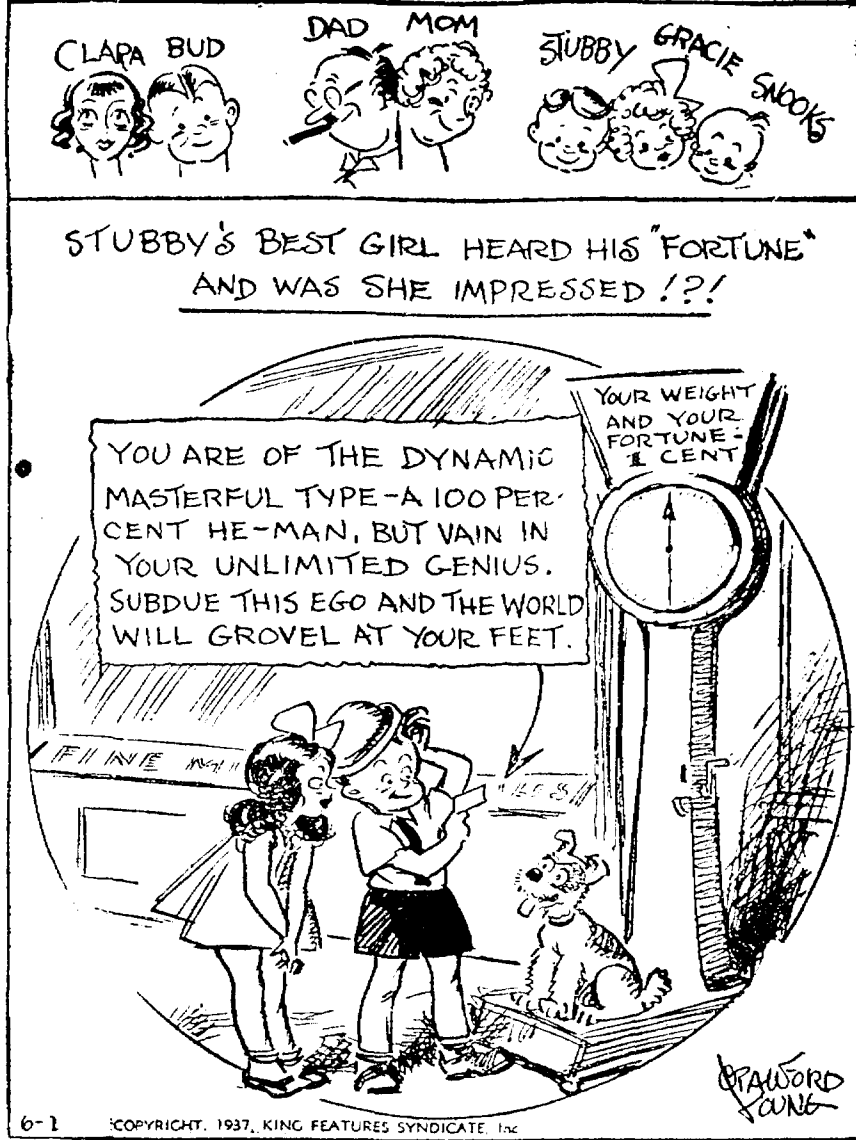

The local Congressman is out of luck. That's why Congress wanted to earmark the Relief appropriation.

at the rate of 1,000 a week, with the list of injured many times that number, and the American people regard this catastrophe with an air of indifference that is alarming in its potentialities.

What the Soul or Mind Has to Do With Eating

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE ARE PRONE to think a great deal about diet in terms of its chemistry and physiology, without thinking very much of what the soul or the mind has to do with it, and yet they have a good deal, according to Dr. Lewis R. Wolberg.

Early man, he points out, was too busy catching his food to concern himself with its preparation. When fire began to be used for cooking, when cereal was made into bread and then baked, and man began to learn something about the gustatory joys of eating, it changed the face of civilization. There are few of us so stultified or so poor that we do not like occasionally to pander to the palate.

This epicurean attitude has been in existence for a long time. We are told by Pherocates of a Greek who enjoyed eating to the extent that he consumed two bushels and a half of food, but whose friend pitied him for having lost his appetite.

No wonder the word "Lucullan" has come into the language if we can believe the story Lucullus paid as much as 1,700 pounds for a single meal, and in eight months Vitellius poured $7,000,000 worth of food into his stomach.

Characteristic Foods

We know nations by the foods they eat quite as well as by their other national characteristics: The Englishman for puddings and meat roasts; the Irish for corned beef and cabbage; the Italians for minestrone and macaroni; the French for onion soup, souffles and sauces; the Hungarians for goulash and paprikas; the Poles for dumplings and kushki; the Russians for caviar; the Dutch for cheese; the Spanish for puchera; the Scandinavians for their hors d'oeuvres; the Germans for sauerkraut and sausages; the Mexicans for tamales; the Greek for okra stew; the Jewish for borshit, krapnik and blintzes; the Hindu for curry, and the Austrian for schnitzel, breads and pastries.

The food habits of famous men and women in history are interesting, and sometimes have changed the course of the world. A shoulder of mutton and onion sauce turned the triumphs of Dresden into disaster for Napoleon. Napoleon was a very erratic eater, sometimes abstemious and sometimes gluttonous. When he was hungry he would eat to stupefaction.

Cardinal Wolsey said of Henry VIII that rather than "miss or want any part of his appetite, he put the loss of one-half of his realm in danger."

Boswell said of Samuel Johnson, "I never knew a man who relished good eating more than he did."

BALLAD

In the summer even,
 While yet the dew was hoar,
 I went plucking purple pansies,
 Till my love should come to shore.

The fishing lights their dances
 Were keeping out at sea,
 And come, I sung, my true love,
 Come hasten home to me!

But the sea, it fell a-moaning,
 And the white gulls rocked thereon;
 And the young moon dropped from heaven.

And the lights hid one by one,
 All silently their glances
 Slipped down the cruel sea,
 And wait! cried the night, and wind and storm—
 Wait, till I come to thee!

THE CHILD'S WISH GRANTED

Do you remember, my sweet, absent son,

How in the soft June days forever done

You loved the heavens so warm and clear and high;

And when I lifted you, soft came your cry

I laughed and said I could not set you down,

Your gray eyes wonder-filled neath the crown

Of bright hair gladdening me as you raced by.

Another Father now, more strong than I,

Has borne you voiceless to your dear blue sky.

Sandy and Marcia met quite by accident near the home of the girl's grandmother in southern California. He is an advertising executive who has just established his own firm and she is a talented commercial artist. Both are tired of their present life and are on vacation. When they go to tell Grandma of their engagement, Marcia learns Sandy is hurt when she calls Los Angeles home. A week later his romance and love. When Marcia insists on returning to her office—a rival advertising agency—at once, as a result of the phone call, Sandy leaves in a huff. Back in Los Angeles, Marcia suffers from disappointment when Abe Zimmerman, her employer, introduces her to Walt Hartley, his new partner. She herself had been led to believe she would be taken into the firm.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 9

MARCIA rushed to the roots of her hair, then tried valiantly to compose herself as she was introduced to Abe's new partner. No use to let this Hartley know she resented him, nor reveal to Abe the depths of her hurt.

"I'm glad," she replied, weakly, "glad to meet you. And did all this happen while I was gone?"

"Well, no. Not exactly. I had this thing in mind for some time, and while you were gone I needed somebody, and Hartley had some money to invest and I needed that too. And so—," with a shrug and a gesture of helpless assent, Abe indicated his feeling in the matter.

"Things will be just the same, Miss Madden," said Hartley, "you will continue in your regular duties. Yes, with the glamor of partnership gone, with the prize allegedly awarded—though the girl bitterly—never again to share the exhilarating thrill of battle and of victory as a personal glorious thing. "Duties" it was to be now, with Hartley reaping the rewards of her long and conscientious work. The man must have sensed her feeling for, with a murmured word about work to be done, he left.

"He's a man, you see," said Sandy in justification of his action. "You'll see, it will be fine. Fine. You won't have to work so hard, and you'll like Hartley. He's a real man."

"You seem pretty sure about that, anyhow," she said, sarcastically. "And now I suppose he's to have all the things you promised me, and the Char-Ming account along with all the rest?"

"Easy to seize upon the one thing that might relieve the situation, Abe cut in quickly. "Ah, no. Marcia. That's your account. I saved it for you, for no one can handle that account like my little Marcia."

Abe knew how to handle people, and he was quick to follow up the lead with Marcia.

"I give you free reign. Only, you got to let me check over everything as you do it," he began, and Marcia laughed silently. Cautious Abe, always promising but never trusting anyone too far. She foresaw many bitter fights when Abe insisted on the practical cold facts of merchandising, and she was carried away by the romance of her job. Between the two they'd argue until they reached a happy medium, and a business-getting solution for Char-Ming. It had always been so. Abe gave her the plank from which to jump on her wild dives, then hauled her back if she swam too far from bed rock.

"Now this is a new product. We got a swell name, all the romance of old China. Fifty thousand Chinamen can't—," Read books. Experiment," he explained inelegantly. "Lots of allure, love angles, gush."

There it was, Abe telling her to "turn on the romance" as Sandy had said—was all the romance in her life to be synthetic, something of her own concocting to sell Char-Ming cosmetics? Marcia was bitter as she realized she had turned Sandy away for this empty shell of a job.

"Here, take this stuff," Abe piled her arms with bottles and boxes. "Take it home, plaster it on your face, see how you like it. Then figure out how to make every woman in the world want to buy it. We have a budget on newspapers and magazines, and some folders. Tomorrow we'll go over your ideas. That's all. See you at 8 o'clock."

Abruptly he dismissed her, and Marcia walked out of the office in a daze. No pleasant conference, no personal welcome, just a take-it-or-leave-it attitude. She was half minded to throw the Char-Ming powders and creams into his office and forfeit her job, but she realized that she couldn't afford to leave that way. Small chance of getting more work if, seemingly, she was supplanted by Hartley. Nor would she give Sandy the satisfaction of knowing her predicament.

And as she reviewed this painful situation, Hartley himself stopped at the door of her cubicle.

"Miss Madden," he said, "I'm awfully sorry if this has upset you and I have a hunch he'd promised me more than he told me. But can't you and I be friends?"

Marcia extended her hand, and answered simply, "Of course."

"Now, how about a little dinner?"

"But I have so much work to do before morning," she told him. "As usual, Abe gave me a five-day job and he wants it tomorrow."

"Genius can't flourish on an empty stomach," he teased, and she studied him carefully. Handsome, she decided—too handsome.

His thick dark hair was perfectly groomed; his regular features held strength and hardness as well as undeniable appeal. Nothing like the sincere, fine appearance of Sandy, she thought, and wondered just how trustworthy this man would prove.

"Well, why not? If the new partner wants to write out the old, I'd say why not? In fact, let's drink our supper," Marcia said with false gaiety. Seeing his eyes brighten in anticipation of a gay evening, she explained, "There's a super soup place down on the corner, and that'll do me for tonight. I'm too tired to eat."

Going down the hall, they heard Abe mutter, "Such goings on. I get a new partner and he snitches my best artist right from under my nose, and so what?"

"So it's a long nose," Hartley whispered to Marcia. "Come on, to the supper!" She countered, and in lockstep they trudged down the long hall.

"Honestly, my spirits have raised 10 degrees since you decided to be friends," Hartley proclaimed. "Better look out or you'll have a fever."

Marcia wondered at herself, and was surprised that she could laugh off her disappointment in such a high-handed manner. Maybe it was blind retribution at stubborn Sandy. Whatever, it was nice to have someone to take her mind off her troubles, and she reserved judgment about the man.

the automobile which will whisk them back to the city and an orderly civilization, leaving the gloating ant to feast upon the spoils of a swell lunch which took a week to plan and more money than could be afforded.

Once more, we ask: what is science doing to combat the picnic ant? To date, there is only one suggestion, our own—suspend all picnics for a full season. Then perhaps, the picnic ants will starve and like the diplodocus, the tyrannosaur and the dodo, disappear from earth—making picnics possible for all future generations.

The picnic ant is a ferocious little creature that is invisible until unsuspecting humans plant their bodies on the greensward, spread a tablecloth and begin having a picnic.

Within 15 minutes a myriad of the little black (sometimes red) devils have converted a pleasant, innocent outdoor party into a witches' sabbath, an impromptu chaos of frantically slapping and scratching humans.

Not only are the ants tearing at the ankles and elsewhere of their human victims but they are dragging off sandwiches, swimming in the cream and coffee and staging snowshoe expeditions across the butter plate, mayonnaise jar and mustard dish.

There remains nothing for the luckless picnickers to do but beat a hasty and unexcused retreat to year.

NO MORE SNAKE BITES
A FOUL blow has been struck mankind. It has been developed that modern medical treatment calls for alcohol as a pain killer, but not in connection with snake bites. The discouraging information was revealed at a regional meeting of the American College of Surgeons.

Instead of using a generous portion of whiskey to combat the nefarious ravages of poison caused by the bite of a snake, Dr. Bowman C. Crowell, of Chicago, said that an injection of an anti-venom was now the accepted thing.

We believe sincerely in science. We favor inoculation and vaccination. We believe that diet is feasible and not unhealthy. We believe in fresh vegetables for vitamins and do not frown too much on the sun lamps. Sea air is good for you and salt water is most beneficial. Rest periods are not to be despised and every one should get eight hours of sleep. We believe that we should not drink too much ice water in hot weather and should wear light clothing to avoid sunstroke.

We accept these and many other suggestions from medical science, but when it comes to a snake bite, we believe in whiskey and plenty of it. There are some brands of whiskey on the market today, if they were put to the test, would kill off a snake quicker than you could bat an eyelid. Just think what that would do to a little bit of poison. No sir, the injection of anti-venom is out. We will stick to the old-fashioned system.

Although many experts have grappled with the problem, and many of their "solutions" have been put into effect, all remedial ideas so far advanced appear to have been proved of little value. People are dying under auto wheels in the United States

He is an advertising executive who has just established his own firm and she is a talented commercial artist. Both are on vacation. A week later it's romance and love. When they go to tell Grandma of their engagement, Marcia learns her office has been trying to reach her. Sandy is hurt when she calls Los Angeles before telling her grandmother returning to her office. A rival advertising agency—at once, as a result of the phone call, Sandy leaves in a huff. Back in Los Angeles, Marcia suffers keen disappointment when Abe Zimmerman, her employer, introduces her to Walt Hartley, his new partner. She herself had been led to believe she would be taken into the firm.

CHAPTER 9

MARCIA flushed to the roots of her hair, then tried valiantly to compose herself as she was introduced to Abe's new partner. No use to let this Hartley know she resented him, nor reveal to Abe the depths of her hurt.

"I'm glad," she replied, weakly, "glad to meet you. And did all this happen while I was gone?"

"Well, no. Not exactly. I had this thing in mind for some time, and while you were gone I needed somebody, and Hartley had some money to invest and I needed that too. And so—", with a shrug and a gesture of helpless assent, Abe indicated his feeling in the matter.

"Things will be just the same, Miss Madden," said Hartley, "you will continue in your regular duties." Yes, with the glamor of partnership gone, with the prize already awarded—thought the girl bitterly—never again to share the exhilarating thrill of battle and of victory as a personal glorious thing.

"Duties!" it was to be now, with Hartley reaping the rewards of her long and conscientious work. The man must have sensed her feeling for, with a murmured word about work to be done, he left.

"He's a man, you see," Abe said, in justification of his action. "You'll see, it will be fine. Fine. You won't have to work so hard, and you'll like Hartley. He's a real man."

"You seem pretty sure about that, anyhow," she said, sarcastically. "And now I suppose he's to have all the things you promised me, and the Charming account along with all the rest!"

Eager to seize upon the one thing that might relieve the situation, Abe cut in quickly, "Ah, no, Marcy. That's your account. I saved it for you, for no one can handle that account like my little Marcy."

Abe knew how to handle people, and he was quick to follow up the lead given by Marcy.

"I give you free reign. Only, you got to let me check over everything as you do it," he began, and Marcia laughed silently. Cautious Abe, always promising but never trusting anyone too far. She foresaw many bitter fights when Abe insisted on the practical cold facts of merchandising, and she was carried away by the romance of her job. Between the two they'd argue until they reached a happy medium, and a business-getting solution for Char-Ming. It had always been so. Abe gave her the pluck from which to jump on her wild dives, then hauled her back if she swam too far from bed rock.

"Now this is a new product. We got a swell name, all the romance of old China. Fifty thousand Chinamen can't—". Read books. Experiment," he explained inelegantly. "Lots of allure, love angles, gush."

There it was, Abe telling her to "turn on the romance" as Sandy had said—was all the romance in her life to be synthetic something of her own concocting to sell Char-Ming cosmetics? Marcia was bitter as she realized she had turned Sandy away for this empty shell of a job.

"Here, take this stuff," Abe piled her arms with bottles and boxes. "Take it home, plaster it on your face, see how you like it. Then figure out how to make every woman in the world want to buy it. We have a budget on newspapers and magazines and some other folders. Tomorrow we'll go over your ideas. That's all. See you at 8 o'clock."

Abruptly he dismissed her, and Marcia walked out of the office in a daze. No pleasant conference, no personal welcome, just a take-it-or-leave-it attitude. She was half minded to throw the Charming powders and creams into his office and forfeit her job, but she realized that she couldn't afford to leave that way. Small chance of getting more work if, seemingly, she was supplanted by Hartley.

Nor would she give Sandy the satisfaction of knowing her predicament. And as she reviewed this painful situation, Hartley himself stopped at the door of her cubicle.

"Miss Madden," he said, "I'm awfully sorry if this has upset you and I have a hunch he'd promised you more than he told me. But can't you and I be friends?"

Marcia extended her hand, and answered simply, "Of course."

"Now, how about a little dinner?"

"But I have so much work to do before morning," she told him. "As usual, Abe gave me a five-day job and he wants it 'tomorrow'."

"Genius can't flourish on an empty stomach," he teased, and she studied him carefully. Handsome, she decided—too handsome. His thick dark hair was perfectly groomed; his regular features held strength and hardness as well as undeniable appeal. Nothing like the sincere, fine appearance of Sandy, she thought, and wondered just how trustworthy this man would prove.

"Well, why not? If the new partner wants to bring out the old, I'd say why not? In fact, let's drink our supper," Marcia said with false gaiety. Seeing his eyes brighten in anticipation of a gay evening, she explained, "There's a super soup place down on the corner, and that'll do me for tonight. I'm too tired to eat."

Going down the hall, they heard Abe mutter, "Such goings on. I get a new partner and he snitches my best artist right from under my nose, and so what?"

"So it's a long nose," Hartley whispered to Marcia. "Come on, to the soupery!" She countered, and in lockstep they trudged down the long hall.

"Honestly, my spirits have raised 10 degrees since you decided to be friends," Hartley proclaimed. "Better look out or you'll have a fever."

Marcia wondered at herself, and was surprised that she could laugh off her disappointment in such a high-handed manner. Maybe it was blind retribution at stubborn Sandy. Whatever it was, it was nice to have someone to take her mind off her troubles and she reserved judgment about the man.

She led him into a hole-in-the-wall cafe where she was accustomed to have a late snack when she worked after hours. "And the creamed mushroom soup is simply perfect," she said.

Perched on high stools in front of the counter, Hartley explained his connection with Abe. Rich son of a rich father, he had been loafing until a year ago. Then he had secured a gentleman's job with Metro Airlines.

"The thrill of making money got into my blood from the start," he told her, unconsciously admitting his strongest failing. "And when Abe was trying to get the Metro account, I had a chance to do him a favor and he became interested in me. He knew Dad, and the upshot of it all was—he offered me a partnership."

"As easy as that," she mused, thinking of how hard she had fought for the privilege that was handed on a platter to this man.

"Now I'm showing Abe where he can line up some really gravy accounts—"

"Better be careful of your vest. You know what they say," Marcia was still on guard.

"If you expect me to admit I look well in whatever I eat, you're mistaken. For instance, I look particularly glum in mushroom soup. It doesn't do a thing for me," he mocked.

Suddenly, Marcia's hand trembled as she lifted the spoon precariously to her mouth.

"Look out, you might not look so well with—", he began when he was interrupted.

"Miss Madden always looks well, particularly when she is playing a business role," and Sandy Knight leaned over the girl's shoulder. "Didn't lose much time, did you?" he asked, bent to find her with the handsome stranger.

"Mr. Hartley, may I present Mr. Knight," she said quickly, to cover the breach. "Mr. Hartley is a new member of our firm, Sandy."

"Well, quite a jolly little gathering, I'm sure," he answered. "You know, my offices are in the next block, so we'll be seeing a lot of each other. In a business way, of course."

Marcia waited breathlessly for him to ask to drive her home, and felt then she would have an opportunity to straighten out all their misunderstandings. Before Sandy could speak, Hartley said in a familiar tone, "Come on, Marcia, we're going home."

Swept off her feet, Marcia could only send a pleading glance to Sandy and ask him to call her before she was rushed out the door by the masterful Hartley. Sandy, finding himself suddenly alone, sat down on a stool.

"A hamburger with plenty of onions," he said, putting the final seal on his loneliness.

SCIENCE HAS made marvelous strides in protecting the apparently ever increasingly frail human race from the ravages of nature, old age and fellow creatures but to date has done nothing about the picnic ant.

The picnic ant is a ferocious little creature that is invisible until unsuspecting humans plant their bodies on the greensward, spread a tablecloth and begin having a picnic.

Within 15 minutes a myriad of the little black (sometimes red) devils have converted a pleasant, innocent outdoor party into a witches' sabbath, an impromptu chaos of frantically slapping and scratching humans.

Not only are the ants tearing at the ankles and elsewhere of their human victims but they are dragging out sandwiches, swimming in the cream and coffee and staging snowshoe expeditions across the butter plate, mayonnaise jar and mustard dish.

There remains nothing for the luckless picnickers to do but beat a hasty and undignified retreat to year.

100 Couples Enjoy Dance at Club Monday Evening

Chuck Selby's Music Entertains Holiday Crowd

Nearly 100 couples enjoyed the Memorial Day dance at the Old Barn of the Pickaway Country Club, Monday evening.

The splendid music of Chuck Selby and his orchestra, of Columbus, added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. Robert Stout, formerly of Circleville, played the drums and sang. John Gussman, of Circleville, offered a clever tap dance routine to entertain the crowd.

Noted among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Tomlinson, of Chillicothe; Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dunlap, Jr., of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. William Radcliff, of Williamsport; James Patton, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Yerkes, of Columbus; Dean White, Ohio Wesleyan university; Miss Patricia Walker, of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. William Briscoe, of Corton, W. Va., and Miss Martha Ferguson, of Lancaster.

Dinner Guests

Mr. and Mrs. John Seall, of E. Franklin street, entertained at dinner Sunday. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Smith and daughters, Naomi and Ruth, and Robert Smith, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Irvin, Wadsworth; Miss Minnie Betz, Mrs. Sarah Wacker, Mr. and Mrs. Millard Gulick, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Wilson and son, David, of Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith, of Urbana and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sagaster, of Hillsboro.

Memorial Day Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Leshner entertained at dinner Memorial Day at their home in Adelphi. The following guests, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Johnson, near Leisville; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson, of Franklin; Wilby Johnson, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stephenson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stephenson and son Larry, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boroff, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Smith, of Bloomingburg, and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Johnson and daughter Patsy, of E. Franklin street, were present.

Wood-Crouse
Ellen Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wood, of Kingston, was united in marriage to Mr. David E. Crouse Jr., son of Mr. David E. Crouse, of Kingston, Sunday, May 30, at 1 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents before an improvised altar formed of baskets of garden flowers grown in her mother's garden.

The Rev. A. M. Forrester, of the Presbyterian church, of Kingston, officiated, using the single ring service. Mr. and Mrs. Orland L. Copley, of Chillicothe, were the only attendants.

For her wedding, Miss Wood chose a white tailored suit with brown accessories. Immediately following the ceremony, the guests were entertained at luncheon at the Burrell tea room. The table was attractively arranged for the service, a beautiful bouquet of garden flowers forming the centerpiece.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Exposure Guides Color Choice
The modern method of painting houses or apartments suggests the selection of colors with respect to room exposure and according to daylight available. Ordinarily pastel colors and white or just-off-white tints effect a brighter and more cheerful room. Added color is introduced in room furnishings, Venetian blinds, or by giving the least obstructed of the four walls a brilliant and definite color. This rule may also be followed in decorating new homes. The Federal Housing Administration will insure mortgages for the construction or purchase of houses.

Strawberry Whip
One cup strawberries, crushed, seven tablespoons sugar, two egg whites, one-half cup whipping cream. Allow berries and sugar to stand together for a short time. Whip egg white until stiff, and fold the berries and sugar into them. Whip cream and fold in last. Pipe into dessert glasses and serve with a garnish of whole strawberries.

Bing Cherry Salad
One No. 3 can Bing cherries, pecans or almonds, two tablespoons gelatin, one-half cup cherry syrup, one cup sugar, two cups orange juice, one-fourth cup sherry wine. Rinse out six or eight individual molds, or one large mold with cold water.

Drain cherries from syrup. Stuff each cherry with a nut meat, placing the cherries in the mold as prepared. Sprinkle gelatin over the top of the cherry syrup and heat it to boiling. Stir until gelatin is dissolved. Remove from stove, add sugar and orange juice and stir until sugar is dissolved. Cool mixture until it starts to congeal, then stir in sherry and turn into mold or molds. Chill until firm. This amount serves six or eight.

STYLE WHIMSIES
It's a great ribbon season. Ribbon being a favorite trim for millinery and also for dresses. Bretelles on evening gowns are being revived. Bretelles are ornamental shoulder straps, in case the word is unfamiliar. In several collections evening frocks have again ribbon shoulder straps, velvet grosgrain or satin, tied on top of the shoulder in perky bows. This treatment makes a frock look new.

Distinguished bathing suits seen in a collection are the bulky and palm tree pique prints for the dressmaker type suit, and knitted suits with multi-colored crocheted flowers applied on one strap. Also the feed bags of washable white leather.

New Reducing Diet allows 2 slices of Bread at Every Meal

THE NEW BREAD DIET is based on the proved fact that Bread itself is not fattening.

Bread is an energy food. Extreme reducing diets cut down too much on energy foods because starch is considered fattening. Bread is not just a "starchy" food. It is a combination of energy-giving carbohydrates and a special form of protein that helps burn up fat while you are reducing.

Extreme diets may result in nervous breakdown and should be undertaken only under a doctor's direction.

Go on the Bread Diet—and be splendidly energetic, not weak and irritable. This diet gives you the main part of your energy food in Bread.

100 Couples Enjoy Dance at Club Monday Evening

Chuck Selby's Music
Entertains Holiday Crowd

Nearly 100 couples enjoyed the Memorial Day dance in the Old Barn of the Pickaway Country Club, Monday evening.

The splendid music of Chuck Selby and his orchestra, of Columbus, added greatly to the pleasure of the evening. Robert Stout, formerly of Circleville, played the drums and sang. John Gussman, of Circleville, offered a clever tap dance routine to entertain the crowd.

Noted among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Tomlinson, of Chillicothe; Mr. and Mrs. John H. Dunlap, Jr., of Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. William Radcliff, of Williamsport; James Patton, of Columbus; Howard Yerkes, of Columbus; Dean White, of Wesleyan university; Miss Patricia Walker, of Cleveland, Mr. and Mrs. William Briscoe, of Corton, W. Va., and Miss Martha Ferguson, of Lancaster.

Dinner Guests

Mr. and Mrs. John Seall, of E. Franklin street, entertained at dinner Sunday. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Smith, and daughters, Naomi and Ruth, and Robert Smith, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Irvin, of Wadsworth; Miss Minnie Betz, Mrs. Sarah Wacker, Mr. and Mrs. Millard Gulick, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Wilson and son, David, of Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith, of Urbana and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sagaster, of Hillsboro.

Memorial Day Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Leshar entertained at dinner Memorial Day at their home in Adelphi. The following guests, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Johnson, near Leisville; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson, of Frankfort; Wilby Johnson, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stephenson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stephenson and son Larry, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boroff, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Smith, of Bloomingburg, and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Johnson and daughter Patsy, of E. Franklin street, were present.

Wood-Crouse

Ellen Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wood, of Kingston, was united in marriage to Mr. David E. Crouse, Jr., son of Mr. David E. Crouse, of Kingston, Sunday, May 30, at 1 o'clock.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents before an improvised altar formed of baskets of garden flowers grown in her mother's garden.

The Rev. A. M. Forrester, of the Presbyterian church, of Kingston, officiated, using the single ring service. Mr. and Mrs. Orland L. Copley, of Chillicothe, were the only attendants.

For her wedding, Miss Wood chose a white tailored suit with brown accessories. Immediately following the ceremony, the guests were entertained at luncheon at the Burrell tea room. The table was attractively arranged for the service, a beautiful bouquet of garden flowers forming the centerpiece.

Here's a quilt you'll indeed point to with pride, for it will add in no small measure to your prestige as a needlewoman. Called "Three Patch" because it has just one, two, three pattern patches to cut, it's composed entirely of simple 8 inch blocks. The design, an unusually effective one, suggests you, and consider contrast when choosing the three materials needed for its making. Start soon, and have it all ready to show at that Fall fair.

In pattern 5821 you will find the Block Chart, an illustration of the finished block in actual size, showing contrasting fabrics; accurately drawn pattern pieces; an illustration of the entire quilt; three color schemes; step-by-step directions for making the quilt, and exact yardage requirements.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Exposure Guides Color Choice
The modern method of painting houses or apartments suggests the selection of colors with respect to room exposure and according to daylight available. Ordinarily pastel colors and white or just-off-white tints effect a brighter and more cheerful room. Added color is introduced in room furnishings, Venetian blinds, or by giving the least obstructed of the four walls a brilliant and definite color. This rule may also be followed in decorating new homes. The Federal Housing Administration will insure mortgages for the construction or purchase of houses.

Strawberry Whip

One cup strawberries, crushed, seven tablespoons sugar, two egg whites, one-half cup whipping cream. Allow berries and sugar to stand together for a short time. Whip egg white until stiff, and fold the berries and sugar into them. Whip cream and fold in last. Pipe into dessert glasses and serve with a garnish of whole strawberries.

Bing Cherry Salad

One No. 3 can Bing cherries, pecans or almonds, two tablespoons gelatin, one-half cup cherry syrup, one cup sugar, two cups orange juice, one-fourth cup sherry wine. Rinse out six or eight individual molds, or one large mold with cold water.

Drain cherries from syrup. Stuff each cherry with a nut meat, placing the cherries in the mold as prepared. Sprinkle gelatin over the top of the cherry syrup and heat it to boiling, stir until gelatin is dissolved, remove from stove, add sugar and orange juice and stir until sugar is dissolved. Cool mixture until it starts to congeal, then stir in sherry and turn into mold or molds. Chill until firm. This amount serves six or eight.

STYLE WHIMISIES

It's a great ribbon season, ribbon being a favorite trim for millinery and also for dresses. Bretelles on evening gowns are being revived. Bretelles are ornamental shoulder straps, in case the word is unfamiliar. In several collections evening frocks have square ribbon shoulder straps, velvet grosgrain or satin, tied on top of the shoulder in perky bows. This treatment makes a frock look new, Also the feed bags of washable white leather.

Distinguished bathing suits seen in a collection are the tulip and palm tree pique prints for the dressmaker type suit, and knitted suits with multi-colored crocheted flowers applied on one strap. Also the feed bags of washable white leather.

BREAD IS NOT FATTENING

New Reducing Diet
allows 2 slices of Bread
at Every Meal

THE new BREAD DIET is based on the proved fact that Bread itself is not fattening.

Bread is an energy food. Extreme reducing diets cut down too much on energy foods because starch is considered fattening. Bread is not just a "starchy" food. It is a combination of energy-giving carbohydrates and a special form of protein that helps burn up fat while you are reducing.

Extreme diets may result in nervous breakdown and should be undertaken only under a doctor's direction.

Go on the Bread Diet—and be splendidly energetic, not weak and irritable. This diet gives you the main part of your energy food in Bread.

BASEBALL HAS BIGGEST DAY OF YEAR AS 263,708 WITNESS CONTESTS

HUBBELL'S WIN STREAK BROKEN BY DODGER NINE

Through Cheers New York Hurler After Being Driven Off Hill

DEAN, WARNEKE BEATEN

Cubs Climb To Dangerous Spot In National

NEW YORK, June 1 — (UP) — Baseball fans had much to talk about today after the biggest day of the season. Among the high spots were:

A total of 263,708 fans attended Decoration Day games.

Carl Hubbell bowed to his first defeat since July 13, 1936.

The Cubs slammed down the Cards' two aces, Lon Warneke and Dizzy Dean.

The Athletics, early-season sensations, lost a doubleheader and plunged all the way to seventh place.

The Phillies, of all teams, won a double-header.

Cincinnati broke an eight-game losing streak to down the league-leading Pirates.

The Yankees, pace-makers in the American league, split a twin bill before 40,100 fans, one of the largest throngs in Boston baseball history.

Cheers For Ability

Hubbell's defeat was the day's most important happening. The lean, gaunt-faced southpaw of the New York Giants was knocked out of the box by his jinx team, Brooklyn.

They blasted him for 7 hits in 3 1-3 innings and led, 5-2, when he retired. A throng of 61,756 persons — second largest in Polo Grounds history — cheered Hubbell as he trudged from the pitcher's box.

They were cheering for Hubbell's 24 straight — 16 last season and eight this year — and not for his inability to keep going. The Giants made only one more run and lost, 10-3.

They won the second game, 5-4. "Everyone was beginning to think I was a super pitcher," Carl said. "I didn't like everyone to think I would win every time I stepped in the box."

The Chicago Cubs moved into a dangerous position in the National league — 2½ games back of the first-place Pirates — by knocking off the Cardinals, 4-2 and 6-3. They beat Lon Warneke in the first game and Dizzy Dean in the second.

Cleveland moved into second place by beating Detroit twice, 7-1 and 6-5, the second game 11 innings. Hal Trosky hit two homers in the nightcap. Earl Averill's triple off Schoolboy Rowe drove in the winning run in the second game.

YESTERDAY'S HEROES—The 61,756 fans who applauded Carl Hubbell when he walked the long trail to the Giants' clubhouse after being pounded out of the box and saw the first defeat written against his name since July 13, 1936.

Protective Baseball Headgear

QUESTION of protective headgear for baseball batters came to the fore again as result of accident that befell Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, who suffered a skull fracture when he was struck by a pitched ball. Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, is shown wearing a polo helmet and inspecting another of the same type, which has been suggested for the baseball diamond.

BATTERY OUTFIT AND CONTAINERS TANGLE TONIGHT

A good softball game is on the schedule for this evening with the Battery Company meeting the Container Corporation outfit. Wednesday's game is scheduled between the fast-stepping Cooper Oils and Kingston, Thursday will see Coca Colas facing Sohios, and Friday brings together the Athletic Club and Yellowbud.

SHAW, 34, WINS SPEEDWAY CASH WITH NEW MARK

Hepburn, Second, Reduces Winner's Lead To Narrow Margin

170,000 WATCH EVENT

Oil Line Trouble Forces Snyder From Track

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 1 — (UP) — Wilbur Shaw, 34, held America's premier auto racing championship today, token of his two-second victory in the 500-mile Memorial Day speedway race. Shaw drove a car he made himself to a record of 113.58 miles an hour, nearly four and one-half miles an hour faster than the 1936 average of Lou Meyer, Huntington Park, Cal.

Shaw, home-town favorite, roared past the checkered finish flag a bare three car-lengths ahead of Ralph Hepburn, Los Angeles. Hepburn finished second, with an average of 113.565.

The race was between Shaw and Hepburn almost from the 100th mile. Less than an hour after the race started Shaw took the lead. When he stopped for fuel on the 187th mile Hepburn surged ahead. He held it only nine laps, but took it again when Shaw went into the pits at 325 miles. At 405 miles Shaw crept back into the lead.

As 170,000 frenzied fans, claimed the greatest crowd in sporting history, debated whether Shaw would have enough gas to last him through the 200th lap, the pair duelled wide-open. 28-Second Lead Out

At the 188th lap — four miles from the finish — Hepburn trailed Shaw by 28 seconds. He trapped on his throttle and picked up 14 seconds in the next two miles. They roared out of the northwest turn into the straightaway with everything they could command from their mounts. Hepburn was closing the gap, but time was too short.

Shaw drove the ultra-streamlined, four-cylinder Gilmore special, in which he placed seventh last year. He drove without relief. He received $5,500 lap money and the $20,000 grand prize.

Ted Horn, Los Angeles, was third with a 112.079 average. Lou Meyer, Huntington Park, Cal., averaged 110.730 for fourth place. All beat Meyer's former record of 109.069.

Jimmie Snyder, Chicago, who set a one-lap record of 130 miles an hour during qualification trials, was forced out with a broken oil line.

Single Accident After Shaw and Hepburn finished, Floyd Davis, Springfield, Ill., cracked up on the northeast turn while fighting for a position in the money-group. He received a cracked rib and his mechanic, Dee Toran, San Diego, Cal., was cut on the head.

PIER PLANNED FOR MEXICO'S PACIFIC PORT

ACAPULCO, Mexico (UP) — This ancient port of the Manila galleons, Mexico's only deep water harbor on the Pacific, is going American.

Along the beach where rich cargoes from the Orient once were landed, engineers are busy with transit and tape, planning a pier that can accommodate the 600-foot ships of the Panama Pacific line which recently made Acapulco a port of call between California and New York.

Choice of a site for the pier has engaged the attention of engineers and of Mexico officials for several weeks and conferences have been held with American steamship officials. Recently Admiral Yancy S. Williams, commanding the U. S. Navy special service squadron based at Panama, was invited to inspect the site proposed. P. V. G. Mitchell, New York steamship executive, also has inspected the harbor, as well as L. E. Archer, San Francisco steamship traffic expert. It is understood that the views of these visitors have been laid before President Cardenas.

Bret Harte in his poem "The Lost Galloon" predicted that Acapulco would awake in 1941, after three centuries of waiting. Modern enterprise anticipated the date by several years, when Mexico opened a now-completed first-class motor highway from the capital to the old port.

To lessen the traffic hazard, British students wear large white discs on their backs when going to and from school on foggy days.

About This And That In Many Sports

Greatest Speedway Race Now History

Almost beyond comprehension is the fact that Wilbur Shaw won the Indianapolis Speedway first prize, Monday, by two seconds over Ralph Hepburn. When you take into consideration that the race is for 500 miles, which means each car makes 200 laps, the narrow margin of two seconds, which can't be many feet, is a narrow one. The finish was the greatest in the history of the Speedway.

About 170,000 persons were present for the big event, which saw a new record of 113.58 miles an hour made. Hepburn, of course, was second with Ted Horn third; Lou Meyer was fourth, Cliff Bergere fifth, and Bill Cummings, Indianapolis native, ended up in the sixth spot. Brooklyn, the team that is still in the National league, stopped the 24-game winning streak of the great Carl Hubbell, Monday, by driving out seven hits in three and one-third innings to force the lefthander off the hill.

Hubbell's streak was the longest ever recorded in organized ball over two seasons. Of course, the World's Series last fall did not count, because the Yankees plastered him once after losing the first fray to the slender ace.

Mickey Cochrane was able to talk with a brother and sister, Monday, making it appear his condition is much better. One of baseball's queer quirks: Catcher Tebbets, of the Tigers, could not hit Willis Hudlin, Monday, so a pinchhitter was sent to bat for him. This was in the first game. In the second Tebbets was used as a pinchhitter and clubbed out a home run. It didn't do any good, though, because Cleveland won both ball games. St. Louis Cardinals seem to be hunting a nice comfortable berth in the second division with Dizzy Dean and Lon Warneke dropping their starts to the Chicago Cubs.

BASEBALL HAS BIGGEST DAY OF YEAR AS 263,708 WITNESS CONTESTS

HUBBELL'S WIN STREAK BROKEN BY DODGER NINE

Throng Cheers New York Hurler After Being Driven Off Hill

DEAN, WARNEKE BEATEN

Cubs Climb To Dangerous Spot in National

NEW YORK, June 1 — (UP) — Baseball fans had much to talk about today after the biggest day of the season. Among the high spots were:

A total of 263,708 fans attended Decoration Day games.

Carl Hubbell bowed to his first defeat since July 13, 1936.

The Cubs slammed down the Cards' two aces, Lon Warneke and Dizzy Dean.

The Athletics, early-season sensations, lost a doubleheader and plunged all the way to seventh place.

The Phillies, of all teams, won a double-header.

Cincinnati broke an eight-game losing streak to down the league-leading Pirates.

The Yankees, pace-makers in the American league, split a twin bill before 40,100 fans, one of the largest throngs in Boston baseball history.

Cheers For Ability

Hubbell's defeat was the day's most important happening. The lean, gaunt-faced southpaw of the New York Giants was knocked out of the box by his jinx team, Brooklyn. They blasted him for 7 hits in 3 1-3 innings and led, 5-2, when he retired. A throng of 61,756 persons — second largest in Polo Grounds history — cheered Hubbell as he trudged from the pitcher's box. They were cheering for Hubbell's 24 straight — 16 last season and eight this year — and not for his inability to keep going. The Giants made only one more run and lost, 10-3.

They won the second game, 5-4. "Everyone was beginning to think I was a super pitcher," Carl said. "I didn't like everyone to think I would win every time I stepped in the box."

The Chicago Cubs moved into a dangerous position in the National league — 2½ games back of the first-place Pirates — by knocking off the Cardinals, 4-2 and 6-3. They beat Lon Warneke in the first game and Dizzy Dean in the second.

Cleveland moved into second place by beating Detroit twice, 7-1 and 6-5, the second game 11 innings. Hal Trosky hit two homers in the nightcap. Earl Averill's triple off Schoolboy Rowe drove in the winning run in the second game.

YESTERDAY'S HEROES—The 61,756 fans who applauded Carl Hubbell when he walked the long trail to the Giants' clubhouse after being pounded out of the box and saw the first defeat written against his name since July 13, 1936.

Protective Baseball Headgear

QUESTION of protective headgear for baseball batters came to the fore again as result of accident that befell Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers, who suffered a skull fracture when he was struck by a pitched ball. Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, is shown wearing a polo helmet and inspecting another of the same type, which has been suggested for the baseball diamond.

BATTERY OUTFIT AND CONTAINERS TANGLE TONIGHT

A good softball game is on the schedule for this evening with the Battery Company meeting the Container Corporation outfit.

Wednesday's game is scheduled between the fast-stepping Cooper Oils and Kingston, Thursday will see Coca Cola facing Sohios, and Friday brings together the Athletic Club and Yellowbud.

GOLF STARS AND OTHERS SEEKING PLACES IN OPEN

NEW YORK, June 1—(UP)—A field of 1,302 golfers sought places today in the U. S. open golf championship which will be contested June 10-12 at the Oakland Hills Country club, Birmingham, Mich.

They played in 30 sections of the United States shooting for 130 berths in the starting field of 170 which have not yet been filled.

Forty players, eight of whom qualified May 17 in tests on the Pacific coast and the remainder of whom were exempt, already are in the tournament.

The rest of the record field—1,404, 127 more than last year's all-time high—played 36 holes of stroke play seeking anywhere from the one place allotted to Georgia, playing in the Arkansas, Georgia, Nebraska, Troy, N. Y., and Utah districts, to the 16 available at Detroit.

Several of our better professionals, who failed to finish among the low scorers last year and thus become exempt, will play along with the not-so-good entrants hoping to qualify to continue in the fight for the title currently held by Tony Manero, of Greensboro, N. C.

How Much Do You Know?

1. Who was Ban Johnson?
2. Where is the all-star game to be played this year?

3. Who preceded Joe Cronin as manager of the Boston Red Sox?

The Answers

1. Byron Bancroft Johnson was one of the organizers of the American league, and served as president for many years.
2. Washington.
3. Stanley Harris, now manager of the Washington Nats.

SHAW, 34, WINS SPEEDWAY CASH WITH NEW MARK

Hepburn, Second, Reduces Winner's Lead To Narrow Margin

170,000 WATCH EVENT

Oil Line Trouble Forces Snyder From Track

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 1 — (UP) — Wilbur Shaw, 34, held America's premier auto racing championship today, token of his two-second victory in the 500-mile Memorial Day speedway race. Shaw drove a car he made himself to a record of 113.58 miles an hour, nearly four and one-half miles an hour faster than the 1936 average of Lou Meyer, Huntington Park, Cal.

Shaw, home-town favorite, roared past the checkered finish flag a bare three car-lengths ahead of Ralph Hepburn, Los Angeles. Hepburn finished second, with an average of 113.565.

The race was between Shaw and Hepburn almost from the 100th mile. Less than an hour after the race started Shaw took the lead. When he stopped for fuel on the 18th mile Hepburn surged ahead. He held it only nine laps, but took it again when Shaw went into the pits at 325 miles. At 405 miles Shaw crept back into the lead.

As 170,000 frenzied fans, claimed the greatest crowd in sporting history, debated whether Shaw would have enough gas to last him through the 200th lap, the pair duelled wide-open.

At the 198th lap — four miles from the finish — Hepburn trailed Shaw by 28 seconds. He trumped on his throttle and picked up 14 seconds in the next two miles. They roared out of the northwest turn into the straightaway with everything they could command from their mounts. Hepburn was closing the gap, but time was too short.

Shaw drove the ultra-streamlined, four-cylinder Gilmore special, in which he placed seventh last year. He drove without relief. He received $5,500 lap money and the $20,000 grand prize.

Ted Horn, Los Angeles, was third with a 112,079 average. Lou Meyer, Huntington Park, Cal., averaged 110,730 for fourth place. All beat Meyer's former record of 109,669.

Jimmy Snyder, Chicago, who set a one-lap record of 130 miles an hour during qualification trials, was forced out with a broken oil line.

Single Accident After Shaw and Hepburn finished, Floyd Davis, Springfield, Ill., cracked up on the northeast turn while fighting for a position in the money-group. He received a cracked rib and his mechanic, Dee Toran, San Diego, Cal., was cut on the head.

PIER PLANNED FOR MEXICO'S PACIFIC PORT

ACAPULCO, Mexico (UP) — This ancient port of the Manila galleons, Mexico's only deep water harbor on the Pacific, is going American.

Along the beach where rich cargoes from the Orient once were landed, engineers are busy with transit and tape, planning a pier that can accommodate the 600-foot ships of the Panama Pacific line which recently made Acapulco a port of call between California and New York.

Choice of a site for the pier has engaged the attention of engineers and of Mexico officials for several weeks and conferences have been held with American steamship officials. Recently Admiral Yancy S. Williams, commanding the U. S. Navy special service squadron based at Panama, when here on a courtesy visit, was invited to inspect the site proposed. P. V. G. Mitchell, New York steamship executive, also has inspected the harbor, as well as L. E. Archer, San Francisco steamship traffic expert. It is understood that the views of these visitors have been laid before President Cardenas.

Bret Harte in his poem "The Lost Galleon" predicted that Acapulco would awake in 1941, after three centuries of waiting. Modern enterprise anticipated the date by several years, when Mexico opened a now-completed first-class motor highway from the capital to the old port.

About This And That In Many Sports

Greatest Speedway Race Now History

Almost beyond comprehension is the fact that Wilbur Shaw won the Indianapolis Speedway first prize, Monday, by two seconds over Ralph Hepburn. — When you take into consideration that the race is for 500 miles, which means each car makes 200 laps, the narrow margin of two seconds, which can't be many feet, is a narrow one. — The finish was the greatest in the history of the Speedway.

— About 170,000 persons were present for the big event, which saw a new record of 113.58 miles an hour made. — Hepburn, of course, was second with Ted Horn third; Lou Meyer was fourth. Cliff Bergere fifth, and Bill Cummings, Indianapolis native, ended up in the sixth spot. — Brooklyn, the team that is still in the National league, stopped the 24-game winning streak of the great Carl Hubbell, Monday, by driving out seven hits in three and one-third innings to force the lefthander off the hill. — Hubbell's streak was the longest ever recorded in organized ball over two seasons. — Of course, the World's Series last fall did not count, because the Yankees plastered him once after losing the first fray to the slender ace. — Mickey Cochrane was able to talk with a brother and sister, Monday, making it appear his condition is much better. — One of baseball's queer quirks: Catcher Tebbets, of the Tigers, could not hit Willis Hudlin, Monday, so a pinchhitter was sent to bat for him. This was in the first game. In the second Tebbets was used as a pinchhitter and clubbed out a home run. It didn't do any good, though, because Cleveland won both ball games. — St. Louis Cardinals seem to be hunting a nice comfortable berth in the second division with Dizzy Dean and Lon Warneke dropping their starts to the Chicago Cubs. —

TO PARTICIPATE IN ANNUAL MUSICAL FESTIVAL AT 8:15 TONIGHT

OUR UNITS OF YOUNG PLAYERS TO PARTICIPATE

Prof. Zaenglein To Direct Interesting Evening in Auditorium

SELECTIONS ANNOUNCED

Public Invited to Hear Work of Boys and Girls

More than 100 pupils of Circleville schools will participate, Tuesday evening, in the annual musical festival to be held in the high school auditorium. The program will begin at 8:15 o'clock.

Prof. C. F. Zaenglein, instructor of instrumental music in the public schools, will be in charge of the program.

The junior orchestra, high school orchestra, junior band, and high school band will take part, each having its share in the program.

The junior orchestra will play a march, "Romance," by Gounod, and the selections, "Operatic Stars," arranged by DeLamater, and "Plantation Echoes," also arranged by DeLamater.

The high school orchestra's numbers will be: march, "Aerial Corps," Nicholson; overture, "The Scarlet Mask," Zameckin.

The junior band will play the march, "Jolly Tars," Liscombe, and the overture, "In the Stockade," Liscombe.

The high school band will provide the remainder of the program, playing a selections from Faust, and the march, "Old Comrades," Telke.

The annual musical festival always draws a large crowd, and it is expected many parents and friends of the youthful musicians will appear for the program. There is no admission charge for the evening.

100 TO PARTICIPATE IN ANNUAL MUSICAL FESTIVAL AT 8:15 TONIGHT

FOUR UNITS OF YOUNG PLAYERS TO PARTICIPATE

Prof. Zaenglein To Direct Interesting Evening in Auditorium

SELECTIONS ANNOUNCED

Public Invited to Hear Work of Boys and Girls

More than 100 pupils of Circleville schools will participate, Tuesday evening, in the annual musical festival to be held in the high school auditorium. The program will begin at 8:15 o'clock.

Prof. C. F. Zaenglein, instructor of instrumental music in the public schools, will be in charge of the program.

The junior orchestra, high school orchestra, junior band, and high school band will take part, each having its share in the program.

The junior orchestra will play a march, "Romance," by Gounod, and the selections, "Operatic Stars," arranged by DeLamater, and "Plantation Echoes," also arranged by DeLamater.

The high school orchestra's numbers will be: march, "Aerial Corps," Nicholson; overture, "The Scarlet Mask," Zamecink.

The junior band will play the march, "Jolly Tars," Liscombe, and the overture, "In the Stockade," Liscombe.

The high school band will provide the remainder of the program, playing a selection from Faust, and the march, "Old Comrades," Telke.

The annual musical festival always draws a large crowd, and it is expected many parents and friends of the youthful musicians will appear for the program. There is no admission charge for the evening.

1,100 gallons of gasoline, carried 600 gallons on the comparatively short hop to San Juan.

The faint dawn sunlight glistened on the silvered body of the plane as it flashed away toward the West Indies. Miss Earhart was to follow Pan American Airways' route to San Juan and on to Natal, Brazil.

The schedule mapped for the flier called for a jump from San Juan to Paramaribo, Netherlands Guiana, a distance of 1,378 miles, tomorrow, and a longer hop the next day—from Paramaribo to Natal, 1,915 miles.

At Natal, she will swing out over the South Atlantic for Africa, where her scheduled landing is Dakar, French West Africa. The route across Africa was not definite as the aviatrix started, but will be one of the general routes to be selected when weather conditions are known.

Over Pacific From Africa the low-winged monoplane will be pointed to Asia and Australia. From "down under," Miss Earhart will begin the final overwater trip across the Pacific by way of Honolulu to California.

BODY OF SLAIN BROKER LOCATED IN BAY WATERS

WASHINGTON, June 1 — (UP) — Chesapeake bay fishermen today recovered the body of Charles F. Keene, Washington real estate broker who mysteriously disappeared from a Potomac river steamboat. A hastily summoned coroner's jury rendered a verdict that the 63-year-old man had been murdered.

Recovery of the missing man's body cast little light on the mysterious tragedy which took his life. He disappeared during the night of May 13 from the Washington-Norfolk steamer, District of Columbia. Bloodstains and overturned furniture in his stateroom indicated a struggle.

Early today Capt. Edward Smith, a fisherman, recovered Keene's body in Chesapeake bay, midway between Tylerton, Md., and Smith island. He took the body to Smith island.

A deep wound pierced Keene's neck and throat. Dr. W. F. Stout, summoned to examine the body, declared the wound might have been caused either by a bullet or a stab from a thin, sharp knife.

Fastened about Keene's neck and weighting down his body was a small handbag. In the handbag was found a strange assortment of articles.

It contained an auto jack, a hammer, two can openers and a woman's fan pocketbook. Inside the woman's pocketbook, police found a small tin tea strainer.

The heavy metal articles had served to sink the body and hold it under water during the days during which search for it had proceeded.

Dr. Stout said that examination of the slain man's lungs left no doubt that he had been killed before being thrown into the water.

The toughest person in the world to handle is a woman.—C. F. Dobson, Richmond, Va., dance hall "bouncer."

Included are: Thursday, June 3, NBC, 1:30 to 2 p. m.; Friday, June 4, Columbia, 2:30 to 3 p. m.; Saturday, June 5, 11:15 to 11:30 a. m.

TAX EVASION

congressional committee aiding in the proposed inquiry.

Mr. Roosevelt quoted the late Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes' definition of taxes as "what we pay for civilized society."

"Too many individuals," the president said, "want the civilization at a discount."

The president sought to forestall an indicated attempt in certain congressional circles to expand consideration of anti-tax evasion legislation to include revision of the entire tax structure.

"It seems to me," Mr. Roosevelt said, "that the first duty of the congress is to empower the government to stop these evil practices, and that legislation to this end should not be confused with legislation to revise tax schedules."

May Revise Revenues

He pointed out that he had already suggested to congress that there should be no new taxes or rate changes at the present session, but left a hint that revision of the revenue laws might be undertaken at the next session.

The evasion devices enumerated by Morgenthau included:

1. Formation of personal holding corporations in nearby foreign countries and islands.
2. Creation of closely-held foreign insurance companies.
3. Formation of domestic personal holding companies, incorporation of yachts and country estates.

4. Artificial deductions for interest and losses on loans to taxpayers by their personal holding companies or family trusts.

5. Creation of multiple trusts for relatives and dependents.

6. Formation of husband and wife or father and children partnerships.

7. Setting up of tax-free pension trusts of which the only beneficiaries are small groups of officers and directors in the high income brackets.

In addition, Morgenthau set forth three major instances in which the law itself permits individuals and corporations to avoid their full share of the tax burden. They included:

1. Percentage depletion of such properties as oil wells and mines.
2. Division of income between husband and wife in states having community property laws.
3. Elimination of the requirement that a non-resident alien must file an income tax return.

LEWIS TO BACK AUTO WORKERS IN FORD DRIVE

C. I. O. Chief Pledges All Resources To Combat Detroit Magnate

by Homer C. Martin, U. A. W. A. president before he left for Washington to discuss the Ford drive with Lewis today. It said:

"Attack by agents of Ford company on Representative Frankenstein and other agents of the United Automobile Workers of America is a most flagrant outrage which will be resented by every member of the organized labor and every thoughtful citizen."

"Such demonstrations indicate the paramount necessity of comprehensive organization of the workers in the Ford plants and other units of major industries."

"It will serve to intensify the desire of the workers to enroll in organizations associated with the committee for industrial organization."

"Committee for Industrial Organization will give every assistance to the United Automobile workers and its members to carry on and to establish collective bargaining in the plants of the Ford company."

Because of the holiday shutdown on Ford plants no company official were available for comment before Martin left. Previously however, the Ford Motor company had denied that "agents" of the company were responsible for the Frankenstein beating.

Harry Bennett, Ford service chief, said that "loyal" employees drove the organizers off Ford property. He blamed "newspapers x x and the U. A. W." for the fight which occurred when union organizers attempted to distribute handbills urging "Unionism not Fordism" at the gate of the huge River Rouge Ford plant.

co-operate. The result might be disastrous.

France and Britain have warned the loyalist Valencia government in its own interests not to commit any further acts which would inevitably result in its destruction and perhaps a general conflagration.

The motive for the bombing of the Deutschland was obscure. The Valencia government charged that the Deutschland deliberately provoked the attack so as to get an excuse for intervention.

ONNO WILSON, RELEASED FROM JAIL; BACK AGAIN

Onno Wilson, 29, E. Franklin street, who has made numerous trips to the city and county jails for intoxication, returned to the county jail Tuesday to serve out a fine of $50 and costs imposed by Mayor W. J. Graham for drunkenness.

Wilson was arrested by police and a fine deferred Monday on promises of good behavior. About five hours later he was back in jail, Mayor Graham said.

Two Columbus men held by police for train riding were given suspended sentences of $10 and costs by Mayor Graham, and released.

Ross Stansbury, 53, of Circleville Route 1, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Marshall Spangler on a charge of reckless operation, paid $25 and costs to Mayor Graham.

COMMITTED TO JAIL

George Castle, 26, of Circleville, Route 2, was committed to the county jail Monday to serve out a fine of $25 and costs in connection with the theft of 110 pounds of soybeans from Ira Carpenter, Route 2. The fine was imposed by H. O. Eveland, justice of peace.

2 P. M. WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY, FRIDAY AT MASON BROS. UNDER THE DIRECTION OF HELEN V. PRUDEN, WELL-KNOWN HOME ECONOMIST.

FREE
9 piece set of Pyrex Flame Ware with each Magic Chef sold this week.

HELEN V. PRUDEN
We are very fortunate to secure this recognized authority and lecturer on Home Management and Dietetics. A graduate in Home Economics, backed with practical knowledge. A charming and forceful speaker, Miss Pruden travels thousands of miles every year lecturing to women's clubs, schools and organizations. You will enjoy meeting and knowing her.

Come hear this well-known authority and get the very newest ideas on how to save money and time in cooking, planning tempting new menus. Learn the new wrinkles on broiling, baking, roasting, how to cook whole oven-meals, oven-canning and cooking in glass. Bring your problems to Miss Pruden.
